EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

Poor Chicago! It is always in an Ill. State.

GENERAL HARRISON says he does not know yet who will be in his cabinet.

JOHN BARLEYCORN is the name of the individual who has proven himself Sullivan's conqueror.

THE work of disinfecting Jacksonville, Florida, has been completed and the city is pronounced "perfectly clean and safe."

SUNDAY brought an accident at Spottsville, Kentucky. The draw of a bridge was opened to permit a steamer to pass. The bridge broke and, it is said, a dozen persons were killed.

PHILADELPHIANS will ask the Legislature to pass a laws forbidding the sale of cigarettes and tobacco to boys under 16 years of age. Such a measure would be wise if it could be made effective.

COMMISSIONER of Pensions Black, wants to be appointed Judge Advocate General of the Army, and rumor says Cleveland has promised him the appointment, but there is considerable doubt about his eleigibility.

Now there is trouble at the island of Samoa, caused, we believe, by the Germans, and it may be that before the year is out we will have to show the new Emperor and the German people that Uncle Sam has some navy.

MR. MORTON'S present visit to Washington is for the purpose of familiarizing himself with the duties of the presiding officer of the Senate in order that he may be prepared to assume them after the fourth of March without awkwardness.

THE agitation now going on in many of the States for the purification of the ballot deserves encouragement. Even though it be but the carrying out of the usual post election programme, some good may come from the movement of those who sincerely desire reform sincerely desire reform sufficiently interest themselves.

As he has hard work to get along, young Emperor William, of Germany, wants his salary raised from $750,000 to $1,600,000 a year. William should form a 'Rulers' Union with Victoria, Francis, Joseph, Alexander and the rest of 'em, and then strike for higher wages. Those miserably underpaid princelings have a genuine grievance.

P. W. JENKS, Esq., a brother of Solicitor General George A. Jenks, and one of the leading lawyers of Punxsutawney, was married on the 17th instant. What makes the alliance remarkable is the fact that the groom is in his seventy-ninth year, whereas the bride has only reached the tender age of twenty-one. It is a veritable case of the union of December and May.

THE supporters of the several candidates for speaker are showing a disposition to divide up into factions. Pennsylvania has two candidates for Clerk of the House, Hon. Ed. McPherson and Major Carson, Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger. Pennsylvania has always had the clerkship when the Republicans have had the House, but the combinations made on the speakership may result in giving it to some other state this this time.

DURING the burning of the Memorial Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, Sunday afternoon, the spectators were treated to the most curious spectacle ever witnessed at a fire—a steeple of flame in a driving snow storm, with streams of water pouring toward it from every side and flying into spray before they reached even the base of the cupola. The steeple burned away with curious uniformity as though it had been constructed for pyrotechnical display.

SENATOR HISCOCK, of New York State, on Thursday laid before the Senate a petition signed by the New York manufacturers of artificial flowers and kindred materials protesting against the proposed reduction of the duty on artificial flowers from fifty to thirty-five per cent. ad valorem. They declare that the duty should be at least seventy-five to 100 per cent., and that the proposed reduction would paralyze their business and throw at least 10,000 persons out of employment.

The Voice of Labor.

John Jarrett, the well known and popular labor advocate of Pittsburg, attended the annual banquet of the American Tariff League in New York on Thursday evening and, in the course of his remarks, gave the following as his estimate of the benefits a judicious tariff has conferred on American laborers:

"It affords me pleasure to respond to the toast, 'The Workingman's Interest in the Tariff.' I became a wage earner when a boy 12 years old, and as such have had experience under both systems, that of tariff for revenue alone, commonly called free trade, in England, my native country, and tariff for protection in this, my adopted country. Having proved both sides of the question, I must testify most emphatically that protection is by far the best system under which the interests of the workingman are promoted, socially, financially and intellectually. I am a protectionist by conviction and experience, and what I shall say on this occasion will not be so much what I have gleaned from the books of professional economists, but most particularly hard facts from the school of experience.

"In the first place, the workingman's interest in the tariff is great, because under its overshadowing influence and fostering care the conditions have been established whereby our great natural resources and advantages have been utilized to the extent they have been. One of the chief of these conditions is that of restricting or limiting competition on the part of foreign producers in our home market. American capital has thus been encouraged to embark in a diversification of industries in manufacturers and commerce, thus creating a market for American labor and securing to it increased and diversified employment.

"In this way our people have become great producers, in converting the elements nature has placed at our command into useful forms for the service of man and beast. Possessing, as we do, more diversified natural resources and advantages than any other nation, under our grand protective system we have so utilized them as to have developed an industrial system far surpassing that of any other nation. Our industrial freedom is now almost equal to our political, making us a nation of free and independent men in the true sense of the term.

"Limiting foreign competitions in the home market has also enabled the American workingman to demand and receive higher wages than is paid in any other country. The result of higher wages has been to place the social standing and progress of the workingman far ahead, his opportunities and advantages are better, and his skill and intelligence superior to those of any other country.

"I maintain that these conditions are chiefly the result of the last twenty-eight years. It is true that there are those who argue that the British workingman has progressed as rapidly in the same period of time as the American workingman. I do not care to take up statistics in this connection, only such as are of a particular character. It is, however, an incontestable fact that the homes, the dress, the table and other surroundings of the large mass of the British working classes are but very little better to-day than they were in 1860. The breakfast table, with its simple fare of bread, butter and tea, is about the same. The adornments of the homes show but little cahnge, the furniture is about the same. They have the same carpetless floors, the same one room for kitchen, sitting-room and parlor, with its flagstone or cement floor. The dress of the people it but very little improved; indeed the general condition of the people show but very little signs of improvement. That progress has been made in certain directions I heartily submit, but these are all the natural developments of civilization.

SENATOR ALDRICH of Rhode Island made a splendid and statesmanlike speech in the Senate, Wednesday, favoring the increase of the duty on tin plate. There is no reason why we should not make our tin plate on this side of the Atlantic and keep for American labor the $12,000,000 now paid British workmen for making it. Of course, Senator Vance trotted out the battered Democratic parrot, and it squawked: "The tariff is a tax." To which Mr. Aldrich replied: "The immediate effect may be to increase the price of the article to the consumer, but in the end it will cheapen it. The importer of tin plate may decrease his profits, the jobber may decrease his, the retail dealer reduce his, and the additional cost may be distributed among twenty different people." Exactly. Meantime increase the duty and make the tin plates at home.

OUR RESPONSIBILITY TO HAYTI.

The Boston Advertiser calls attention to the fact that the United States is "not observing the obligations of a neutral nation toward Hayti," in that "several blockade runners have left our ports since the proclamation of blockade by the administration of Legitime with no serious effort on our part to investigate their actual ownership."

This is a pertinent criticism of a sin of omission, which can fairly be made of the general treatment which Secretary Bayard has adopted toward the Haytians. He very properly sent Admiral Luce down to Port au Prince to secure the release of an American vessel detained there, but he has not taken equal care to prevent other buccaneering expeditions from fitting out in our ports. The cases of the Madrid, the Mercedes and other vessels of war which have lately been cleared from New York may be cited in support of this statement.

Of course Hayti is such a petty government that there is no possibility of retaliation, but it is well to remember that the sober good sense of our people will compel the nation to do justice even to the powerless, if we neglect our duty and they suffer thereby. The United States does not rely upon might as against right. Secretary Bayard and his master must seet to it that we are not compelled to make restitution for injuries which would not have been done if reasonable care had been exercised.

THE PARROT AND THE OWL.—The question having arisen, "Why Do We Eat?" the Parrot Challenged the Owl to a discussion and left the Decision to the Serpent. The Parrot went back several Thousand year to Prove that Adam ate and was Obliged to Eat, and that all Men who came after him had been Obliged to eat, and used up the best of two hours in drawing comparisons, making Deductions, and Clinching his Points. When he finally sat down wet with Perspiration, but Flattered by his own Arguments, the Serpent asked the Owl to begin. "Gentlemen," said the Bird, as he slowly arose. "I have only a word to say. It is my opinion we Eat because we were Built that way." The Serpent promptly Decided that the Owl had the best of it, and when the Parrot raised a howl over it the Fox chucked him under the wing and said: "Blab is a good thing, but Brevity and Common Sense most always hit a Jury." Moral: If some Lawyers were Dumo, they would double their Patronage.—Detroit Free Press.

LUTHER R. MARSH, the New York lawyer, whom the cunning Madame Diss Debar made a victim to her tricks is a wise man when compared with another well-known New Yorker named Carroll, who has become a dupe to a woman of the same stripe as the notorious Diss Debar. The willingness with which he became a victim of the most barefaced imposition and chicanery, is an extraordinery instance of the delusions which upset the intellect of men otherwise sensible in the affairs of life. But the most remarkable feature of the case is that his wife when she protested against his follies should have been put in an asylum because she was insane! In this age of civilization there is still abundant room for humbug and superstition, and the supply of fools who support sharpers seems to be in no danger of being diminished.

WITH cyclones at their deadly work in our state and the dreaded White Caps appearing in many sections it looks as if this state was becoming entirely too much westernized. We can't do much with the cylones, but Gov. Beaver ought to be able to put the quietus on the White Caps and we will be greatly disappointed if he don't do it. These organizations of ruffians must not be permitted to find a home in Pennsylvania.

THERE is a young lady in Philadelphia named Miss Grubb, who seems to be quite a belle, her name and her charms being dilated on by the reporters at all the big balls. We have no doubt that she is very fascinating, but we advise her to change her name quite soon. The name "Grubb" is not at all suitable for a belle.

THEIR LATEST BLUNDER.

The innate capacity of the Democratic party for blundering remarks the New York Tribune, was never better illustrated than in the Omnibus Territorial bill just passed by the house. It would be difficult to conceive of a measure more obviously dishonest, or one which more flagrantly disregarded all the essential facts of the situation. South Dakota and Montana are coupled together as the two States worthy of prompt admission, while North Dakota and Washington are left with New-Mexico in their present position. The latter may hold conventions and frame constitutions, which they could do of their own accord, but they cannot enter the Union until Congress passes special acts admitting them. This arrangement, judged by the facts, seems utterly senseless, but an inquiry into its political bearing shows that there is method in this madness, though only from the Democratic point of view.

The concession to South Dakota was unavoidable. Not even a party that submits to the leadership of Mr. Springer could refuse outright to admit a Commonwealth like South Dakota with a population, excluding Indians, of at least 350,000. But even this act of justice is obstructed and delayed by requiring that the people of the entire Territory of Dakota shall first vote in favor of division which they have repeatedly done, and that the people of South Dakota shall also ratify the Constitution they adopted in 1885. Montana, which is placed upon a par with South Dakota, has a population only two-fifths as great. The official estimate contained in the last report of the Governor is 140,000. In other words, Montana, which is to enter the Union by proclamation, after the people have ratified the Constitution adopted five years ago when the population was far below the unit of representation, has the smallest population of all the States which it is seriously proposed by any one to admit. North Dakota, which this insolent bill thrusts back into a Territorial condition, has a population of at least 250,000, excluding Indians. The population of Washington is officially estimated at 186,393—a figure which is believed to be already exceeded by the rapid growth of this Territory—and New Mexico has a population of 175,000.

We have already urged the admission of Montana because we believe it fully qualified for Statehood. Its population is slightly below the unit of representation, but it is steadily growing, and the development of the Territory is advancing along such lines that there seems to be no possibility of future retrogression and decay, as in the case of Nevada. But, to admit Montana, while North Dakota, the great wheat State, and Washington, the noble new Commonwealth of the Pacific Slope, are shut out, would be a travesty upon the American system. The explanation of the course of the Democrats is easy. They have received assurances which are satisfactory to them that Montana shall be a Democratic State. Therefore, although a Democratic Delegate stands on the floor of the House to plead for the admission of Washington, the measure of whose qualifications is pressed full and running over, the House refuses to assent, because at the last election the people of the Territory expressed their disgust with the Democratic party by giving a Republican majority of 7,331, and electing only 3 Democrats to the Legislature out of 33 members. The Republican majority in North Dakota—almost the same to a figure, 7,786—makes it clear why this State also is to be kept out as long as possible. North Dakota cast a total vote in November larger than that of Rhode Island, and larger than that of Delaware and Nevada combined, but because it will doubtless be a Republican State, the day when its star shall gleam on our flag must be put off as long as brutal partisanship can postpone it.

It is difficult to say what the Democrats expect to get by this fooling with a grave question. Every year that they have kept out of the Union those Northwestern Territories which were fully qualified, their party name has become more and more odious to the people who were feeling the effects of this injustice. They cannot long postpone the admission of North Dakota and Washington, because within a few weeks a Republican Congress and a Republican President will assume complete control of the Government for the first time in many years. Justice will then be done to the people of those two States, but without the aid of the Democracy and in spite of its opposition. It is a fortunate thing, however, for the country that at stated periods the Democratic party reveals itself as one without either sense or conscience, as unscrupulous as it is ignorant and incompetent.

The Sugar Bounty.

The paying of a direct bounty to the producers of sugar is a departure from the protective principle that is not relished by some, notably Judge Kelley. The departure is seeming, rather than radical, and is warranted by the peculiar condition of the sugar-growing interests of the country. The object is to encourage the home production of sugar. It is protection in another form, and, as Senator Sherman remarked, the principle had been supported by some of the most eminent men of the country. If he is not mistaken in his belief, that in less than ten years enough sugar could be produced in the United States to supply the home demand, the payment of the proposed bounty would be the best possible investment the Government could make.

Senator Allison stated the case quite forcibly when he declared "it would be better for the people to pay for the whole sugar crop of Louisiana and dump it into the Gulf than to keep up the existing duty on sugar." The sugar growers of that State will have no just ground for complaint if they are placed in no worse position under a bounty than under a discriminating duty. They have utterly failed, after years of protection, to meet the just expectations of the consumers of sugar, and the saving of $22,000,000 annually, after the payment of the proposed bounty, is something the country will not complain of. Neither should there be any objections to the payment of a bounty, as such, since it was unquestionably by that policy that France and Germany were enabled to stimulate the production of beet sugar to its present enormous proportions.

ANOTHER of the successful members of the celebrated Washburne family, which has had eminent representatives in Maine, Massachusetts and Illinois, has once more come to the front in Minnesota. This is William D. Washburne, who was chosen on Thursday by the Republican caucus of the Legislature in that State to succeed Dwight M. Sabin in the United States Senate. Sabin's career at Washington has not been satisfactory to the large Scandinavian population, which exercises an extraordinary influence over the Republican party in Minnesota, and his defeat is chiefly due to its opposition. Washburne is a man of high character, and if he has as much ability as some of the other members of his family have shown in the national councils, he will be a valuable acquisition to the Senate.

THE democratic Senators are somewhat frightened at the prospect of a number of democrats of the House voting with the republicans to pass the Senate tariff bill. Representative Wilson, of West Virginia, and Representative Catchings, of Mississippi, openly stated their intention of voting for the measure, if it ever gets before the House, and it is generally believed there will be enough of the same sort to insure its passage, if it could be brought before the House. There's the rub. It is hardly likely to be voted upon in the House, unless its friends can steal a march on its enemies.

GENERAL HARRISON is said to be at work on his inaugural address. If reports are correct, and they are in accordance with his oft expressed views, he will urge the need of a free ballot in the south and the cardinal principal of control of the government by a majority. As a patriotic American and lover of free institutions he could take no other view and such a position ought not to startle nor disturb any one.

THE Senate has passed the amendment to the tariff bill, allowing a bounty of one cent per pound on all sugar produced in this country. Senator Quay was the only Republican Senator that voted against the amendment, and Senator Payne the only Democrat that voted for it. Unless something now unforseen shall prevent, the bill will be passed by the Senate.

SECRETARY BAYARD is quoted as saying that the State Department has done all it could to settle the Samoan difficulty. This is equivalent to a confession that the State Department can do nothing.

Wedding Remarks.

From the New Orleans Democrat.

The following remarks have mostly been said time after time at all our "tony" weddings, and will be said again and again on every such occasion.

Here she comes!
Pretty, isn't she?
Who made her dress?
Is it Surah silk or satin?
Is her vail real lace?
She's as white as the wall!
Wonder how much he's worth?
Did he give her those diamonds?
He's scared to death!
Isn't she the cool piece?
That train's a horrid shape!
Isn't her mother a dowdy?
Aren't the bridesmaids homely?
That's a handsome usher!
Hasn't she a cute little hand?
Wonder what number her gloves are?
They say her shoes are fives.
If his hair isn't parted in the middle!
Wonder what on earth she married him for!
For his money of course!
Isn't he handsome?
He's as homely as a hedge-hog!
He looks like a circus clown!
No, he's like a dancing master!
Good enough for her any way.
She was always a stuck-up thing.
She'll be worse than ever now!
She jilted Sam Somebody, didn't she?
No, he never asked her.
He's left town, any way.
There the ceremony has begun.
Isn't he awkward?
White as his collar!
Why don't they hurry up?
Did she say she would "obey?"
What a precious fool!
There they are married!
Doesn't she look happy?
Pity if she wouldn't!
(Wish I were in her place!)
What a handsome couple!
She was always a sweet little thing.
How gracefully she walks!
Dear me what airs she puts on!
Wouldn't be in her place for a farm!
I'll bet those jewels were hired.
Well she's off her father's hands at last!
Doesn't she cling tightly to him though!
She has a mortgage on him now!
Hope they will be happy!
They say she's awful smart.
Too smart for him by a jugful.
There they are getting in the carriage!
That handsome dress will be squashed!
The way she does look at him!
I bet she worships him!
Worship be hanged! she's only making believe!
It's kind of nice to get married, isn't it?
No, it's a dreadful bore!
Wasn't it a stupid wedding?
What dowdy dresses!
I'll never go to another!
I'm just suffocated
Tired to death!
Glad it's over!
Oh, dear!

Our Story Teller'

LADY B.'S BUTLER.

Miss M. is a pretty heiress, whose name for obvious reasons we must suppress; Mr. R. is a young diplomatist who fancies he has every chance of becoming an embassador before the last of his short-cropped locks has deserted him. Mr. R. has heard of Miss M. as being the owner of a wonderfully beautiful diamond necklace, and as possessing more personal attractions than are supposed to belong to any but interesting paupers.

Miss M., on the other hand, had been informed that Mr. R. was a very decent sort of a fellow, with the smallest amount possible of Foreign Office swagger. They met for the first time under Lady B.'s roof, and surveyed each other with mutual interest from the opposite sides of an elaborately decorated dinner-table. The necklace came up to Mr. R.'s expectations, but their owner surpassed them. Not only was she pretty, but also vivacious and evidently amusing—not a painted, dressed-up doll, like the woman beside him, got up for admiration, and incapable of conversation.

Not being accostumed to admire without some sort of return, he left the doll to the tender mercies of her left hand neighbor and devoted his attention to Miss M. They had grown quite friendly over 5 o'clock tea, and now exchanged telegraphic signs across the table about any small episodes that arose during the dinner. Mr. R. thought he was getting on, and became so engrossed that he neglected his favorite entree and had scarcely time to do justice to the saddle of mutton.

But when the regular ice cream had made its round he noticed a sudden change in the girl opposite to him. She turned as white as her own handkerchief, and leaned back in her chair, silent and abstracted, with wide-open eyes and parted lips. For the rest of the time she scarcely talked at all, and seemed incapable of rallying; but she shook her head when he made a sign that he was ready to assist her out of the room, and kept her seat until the ladies rose and filed slowly through the door. He would have given much to follow them at once, because his curiosity was vividly roused.

He was sure there was some mystery behind the scenes, for she looked as if she had received a shock—seen a ghost, or discovered an unwished-for friend. As soon as he could get away he looked round the drawing room, and seeing Miss M. sitting apart from the other ladies, and turning over the leaves of a photograph book in evident preoccupation; he made his way to her; and standing before her, so as to shield her from observation, asked in a low voice if he could do anything for her.

She looked up in surprise. "Thanks, I don't want anything."

"But you are annoyed or ill—one or the other. I shall never forget your look at dinner."

"Did any one notice it?" eagerly.

"Not a soul except myself. Of course I don't wish to force your confidence, but if I can be of any service to you—"

'No one can do me any good,' hurriedly. 'Only I wish to heaven I had never come!'

He looked at her with genuine compassion, for he saw that she was shivering from head to foot.

'Shall I fetch Lady B.——?'

'Not for the world. I would tell you, only you would think me so foolish,' looking round to be sure that no one could overhear,

'I promise you I won't,' earnestly, as he took a chair and sat down just in front of her, so that she should not have to raise her voice. 'Pray, tell me.'

'It was only a dream,' with the ghost of a smile. Last night I thought I was being murdered for the sake of this necklace,' playing nervously with the diamonds round her white throat, 'and I woke up struggling with a man—a man with a long chin and reddish hair. I felt I should know him anywhere, and I saw him to-day at dinner,' with a shudder, handing the liqueurs.'

"Why that was Bird, the butler. You couldn't be afraid of him?'

'I am', looking at him with terror in her pretty eyes. 'I am sure he will try and murder me to night. I can't go to bed. I should never close my eyes,' and she shivered again.

'You can go to bed in perfect confidence. I'll tell you what I'll do for you,' and Mr. R. smiled, feeling that he was making a noble effort.

'Our rooms lie on the same corridor. I have heaps of letters to write—worse luck so I must sit up. I'll keep my door ajar, which wont be noticed, as there is a light in the passage, and my ears are so sharp that I would defy any one to pass it without my knowing it. Will that content you?'

'You are very kind, but he might wait until your letters are finished'.

'That will make no difference. I promise so sit up until my hot water's brought. Will that satisfy you?'

'Oh, but that's too much.'

'Not at all. If you tell me in the morning that you've had a good night.' with a pleasant smile, 'I shall feel amply rewarded; besides I can do with less sleep than most people, and I'm sure to take it out before I go to luncheon.'

Miss M. expostulated, but he would not listen, being quite excited at the idea of rendering a service to such a pretty girl, and when the guests separated for the night, and he whispered, I haven't forgotten,' she gave him so charming a look of gratitude that his heart fluttered like a schoolboy's.

Two o'clock A. M. with a decaying fire and without the solace of a pipe. He had written two or three letters just to save his conscience, but the effort was so great that he wouldn't have begun another to save his life. In order to reassure Miss M., who might be on the lookout, he left the smoking-room on the pretext of a head ache, and established himself in his room about midnight. Smoking and sleeping were both out of the question, and two longer hours he had never spent in his whole existance. He heard doors opening and shutting down stairs, a suppressed laugh at the last good story told amidst tobacco smoke, the tread of several pairs of feet in different directions, and then silence.

Miss M. being no longer there with her white face and a small figure all of a tremble to work upon his feelings, he began to feel his position, as eminently ridiculous. His excitement had cooled down. His compassion had waned like the moon; but infinitely bored and intensely sleepy he was bound by his promise to a girl. And all on account of a dream! He asked himself with his fingers running through his usually neat hair and his mouth distended in an unconscious yawn, if anybody had ever heard of a man being victimized by somebody else's dream. It was arrant nonsense and he was a fool to give in to it. No, not quite that, with a throb of compunction, or the girl would have been worried herself into fits; but he ought to have reasoned with her, or suggested that she might have a dog in her room.

Lady B.'s Fidget would have been sure to bark if a mouse had squeaked, and would have howled the house down at sight of a burglar. A pity he hadn't thought of it; but supposing he had, Miss M.'s gratitude would have given to Fidget and not to himself, and he rather wished to win it. Another yawn till he thought he had cracked his jaws. The fire was dying out, he was afraid to stir it, but he thought he might tickle it with the poker. He got up cautiously, and was stretching out his hand for the poker, when he heard a sound in the passage. He began to think that his nervous system was deranged, for he had never believed that there was the smallest reason for his watching. But the sound was repeated and sent an unmistakable thrill through his veins. He got to the door noiselessly, thanks to his slippers, and without opening it any further, peered through the crack. He could scarcely believe his eyes when he saw Bird, the butler, carrying a pair of tiny high heeled boots in his hand. Was there really something in the dream after all? He waited till the man actually stopped at Miss M.'s door and placed his hand on the handle.

Then with one stride he was by his side.

'What are you doing here?' he said in a stern whisper, staring the butler straight in the face.

The man started, turned perfectly livid, and let the boots fall from his shaking fingers, but made a great effort after composure, and tried to steady his voice as he said: 'I had forgotten to send up these boots before, sir, and I was afraid the young lady might want them the first thing in the morning.'

'If she did it wouldn't be your business to bring them. You must be mad or drunk, and I shall report you to your master to-morrow.'

The man's under-lip shook and his eyes shifted uneasily. I meant no harm, he said, sullenly, as he stooped to pick up the boots.

But Mr. R. stopped him on a suddenly impulse. 'Leave them here, and go off at once.'

Bird seemed inclined to remonstrate, and even stretched out his hand again as if to take the boots, but Mr. R. signed him to go with a significant frown.

The butler slunk down the passage, giving a backward look before he turned the corner. Mr. R. watched him out of sight, then picked up the boots and carried them to the gaslight. Nothing in the first, a dainty, innocent covering for a pretty foot; but something hard rattled in one of them as they dropped on the floor, and he was not surprised to find in the second a long, pointed knife. As he drew it out and scratched his finger with the sharp edge, his blood turned cold as he thought of the girl's white throat and the crimson gash.

If it had not been for a dream that girl would have been brutally murdered in her bed.

* * * * * * * *

Mr. R. thought it right to tell the circumstances of the case to Lord and Lady B. Miss M. agreed with him, but said she would go home before he spoke to avoid a fuss. As soon as she had left the house the story was told, and Lady B. nearly went into hysterics. Lord B. said there was not sufficient evidence to support a charge of murder, but he declined to have his enterprising butler any longer in the house.

He therefore dismissed him at once on another pretext, and Mr. George Bird is now on the lookout for another place, where he may cut a throat when he feels inclined, with no troublesome third party to interfere. A nice thought for those who are about to engage a butler.

This story is true, only a few trifling details having been altered, and the proper names suppressed. Mr. Bird is the only person concerned in it who would be able to bring an action for libel against me, but for his own sake he is likely to keep quiet.

The National Guard Encampment.

The Harrisburg Patriot says: General Hastings is in favor of regimental encampment of the National Guard next summer, and it is believed that Governor Beaver and Major General Hartranft entertain similar views. General Hastings believes in rotation in militia encampments, a division encampment one year, brigade the next, and regimental last. The location of regiments can be arranged so as to enable the inspecting officers to complete their work in about two weeks. The greatest difficulty to be met is in the Second Brigade, whose regiments are distributed over a large area. The cost of a regimental encampment is much smaller than either a division or brigade encampment, owing to the diminished expenses for transportation. The cost of transporting the troops to the last division encampment at Mt. Gretna was about $34,000, which is probably twice as much as that for a regimental encampment.

A COMMON EXPERIENCE.

Wife—John, I suppose you have some money laid up, haven't you?

John—Not a cent.

"Why, John!" It is a year since you stopped drinking and you have worked like a slave every day since."

"That's true."

"Where is your money then?"

"The money I have saved by swearing off I had to loan to old friends who didn't swear off."

SHE DID NOT TAKE IT.—Toto has been expressly forbidden to touch anything upon papa's library desk, and has had the lesson painfully enforced upon several occasions. The other night a discussion arose as to the origin of a certain word. The dictionary was found on papa's desk, but the word was not in it. "It's very strange" says papa. "That word is certainly missing, and yet it ought to be there." Toto (with tearful earnestness) "I can't help it, papa; I really didn't take it."

Col. Plunger (patronizingly): "Ah, Miss Grace, you handle the ribbons wonderfully. Quite a woman after my own heart. My father, the general, was a superb tandom driver in his time." Miss Grace (calmly); "Yes, I have heard of the General's early efforts in driving." Col. Plunger (nervously); "Ah!—may I—ask—how you—?" Miss Grace: "Well, you see, grandma told me of it. She was often a passenger in the canalboat drawn by the first tandem driven by your father."

IT is said that 14,000,000 names are attached to the petitions to Congress to pass the Sunday restriction bill.

AMANDA QUICKSTEP'S RUSE.

The Little Strategem that Gave Mr. McPelican Courage to Propose.

Chicago Tribune.

"Have you ever experienced the feeling, Mr. McPelican," said the young lady softly, "that some great opportunity was within your grasp, but you had hardly the presence of mind, the—the courage, as it were, to avail yourself of it?"

"Why—er—yes, Miss Quickstep, I have sometimes had a kind of feeling as if I'd been sort of sent for and couldn't go, you know."

Miss Amanda sighed dreamily and there was a pause, during which the two sat in the semi-darkness of the Quickstep parlor and exchanged profound silences.

The door opened and Miss Amanda's elderly female relative looked in.

"The book you are looking for, auntie," said the young lady with entire self-posession and some emphasis, "is probably in the library."

The elderly female relative withdrew and Miss Amanda spoke again in the soft, musical, persuasive voice of a trained applicant for charity.

"She will not disturb us again, Mr. McPelican."

"She wasn't disturbing me any," he protested.

And he sat and looked helplessly at the glowing coals in the grate, with the feeling that every breath he drew was a mortifying and ghastly blunder.

"As you were about to say, Mr. McPelican," resumed the young lady, "there are times when it seems to all of us that we must speak what is in our h—in our minds."

"Yes," vaguely answered the bewildered youth, and he tried to remember when he had started to say anything of the kind; "yes, of course."

"And while I am not sure that I ought to listen to you, Mr. McPelican," she said, with downcast eyes, "when you speak to me in this—in this personal manner, yet—"

The young man could feel his pulse beating a tatoo on the drums of his ears, but he sat like a bound boy at a corn husking and said nothing.

"By the way," exclaimed Miss Amanda presently, "I have a new book of engravings, Mr. McPelican, that I am sure you will enjoy seeing. It is a large book, and you'll have to move your chair—why, certainly, you can sit with me on the sofa. I never thought about that."

The pictures danced before the eyes of the young man in blurred, confused images.

"Isn't this engraving of the "Courtship of Florence Dombey and Walter Guy' perfectly lovely?"

"Wh-which is Walt?"

"There! Look closer. Don't you see him?"

"Wh—who's he courting?"

"You'll have to come closer, Mr. McPelican. I declare, though," and she looked archly at the trembling youth, "I am almost afraid to let you come any nearer. You look just like Walter in the picture."

And the arm of the helpless young man stole in a limp, apologetic, sneaking way around the waist of the charming Amanda Quickstep, her head sank on his shoulder and the book of engravings fell neglected to the floor.

"Alfred," she said an hour later, as she toyed with a button of his coat, "you bold boy! How on earth did you ever muster up courage enough to ask me to be your wife? You know well enough I never gave you a particle of encouragement."

The young man patted her condescendingly on the head and then spoke proudly, with the voice of an Ajax defying lightning.

"When I make up my mind to do anything, Amanda, no obstacle on earth can stop me."

Innocent young Mr. McPelican!

ALL FOR THE BEST.

Madam's small boy has broken out in a new place. He had been visiting one of his schoolmates, and he came back with a serious face.

"Mamma," he said, "I guess it's all right with that piece of poetry you told me about, "He Doeth All Things Well.'"

"Oh, indeed," said mamma. "And why?"

"Well, I think he did just the square thing in giving me to you instead of to Mrs. Dunnep, for I've been over there three hours, and I know I could never stand that woman."

The Latest Craze.

The craze for putting ladies' watches in odd places is developing to such an extent that one may expect to see the fair ones with watches on the toes of their shoes or on the back of their gloves or wherever they can see the timepiece at a glance. In a Broadway car yesterday three ladies took seats beside one another. One had a watch in the handle of her umbrella, one had a watch in the catch or clasp of her pocketbook, and the third carried a tiny watch in a bracelet on her left arm. The last example of the craze, that of the bracelet, is a Viennes idea just imported. The bracelet was of leather, and was unquestionably the ugliest ornament any lady wore on Broadway yesterday'—N. The little girl, who wrote on her examination paper: "The interior of Africa is principally used for purposes of exploration," was wiser than she thought.

A Reward of Merit.—Bank Teller: "Will you take it as presumption, madam, if I offer you these few roses?" Miss Caramella Goldust: "I don't know you, sir!" Bank Teller: "I am aware of that; but you are the only woman in the history of this bank who ever endorsed a check on the right end!"

He Bore No Malice.—Bride of a month: "We must not forget the Goodharts, Alfred. If it had not been for their house party this time last year, we should never have met and married.' Bridegroom of ditto: "Nonsense, my dear! they didn't mean any harm."

A parish minister in Scotland was examining a class of small boys on their reading exercises. The lesson was on the life of a pious man. The minister told the boys he would give a penny to the one who should first tell him what a pious man was. A tousle-headed urchin at the bottom of the class shouted out: "I ken't, I ken't, Mr. Minister!" "Well, my little boy, what does it mean?" "It's a man that makes pies, sir!"

Obedient Boy: "Mamma, may I speak?" "You know that you must not talk at table." "May I not say just one thing?" "No, my boy. When papa has read his paper you may speak." (Papa reads through his paper and says kindly): "Now, my child, what is it?" "I only wanted to say that the water-pipe in the bath-room had burst."

In the matters of cigars there is something worse than the American brand known as "two for five." In Austria there is a monstrosity which is sold two for a cent, known as the 'International,' because when it is smoked in Austria it can be smelled in every nation in Europe. No wonder there is so much discontent and anarchy in the Old World.

A Fraternal Youth.

Pittsburg Dispatch.

"I'm going to make my will," said a sad faced young man yesterday as he sat down in the attorney's own chair and began reading a rough draft of a summons in divorce, which the attorney was particularly desirous of keeping out of sight.

"Certainly Mr. Jones," said the attorney, quickly taking the confidential paper from his visitors hands.

So they set about framing the will, and sooner or later, probably later, for the introduction to a will is apt to be rather lengthy at so much a folio, they came to the point for Mr. Jones to decribe his property. Mr. Jones looked up mildly in response to the lawyer's inquiries and said:

"Is it necessary for me to describe my property?"

"In this case, where your heirs seem to be numerous, yes."

"But I haven't any."

"You haven't any. What do you want with a will then?"

"Well, you see, I have a brother who is practicing law and butchering out in Idaho, and he says that law suits are so few and butchers so plenty that he can't begin to make both ends meet, and I thought that as so many lawyers get rich contesting wills, and as I'm bound to die shortly, I'd leave a will for Tom to contest and get rich on—but if you say I must have property it ain't no use'—and the sad faced young man passed out to be jostled once more by this wicked and notoriously one sided world.

Gus De Smith is very angry at you; he says you insulted him at the railroad depot the other day," remarked Hostetter McGinnis to Gilhooly.

"Yes, and I'll insult him worse still if I can lay my hands on him; the miserable scoundrel saw me going off with my mother-in-law on one arm and my wife on the other, and he asked me if I wasn't going on a pleasure trip."

What is the difference between a muscular tramp and a newly cleaned lamp? Only this, one is a well-limbed tramp, and the other is a well-trimmed lamp.

FIRE-PROOF HOUSES.

It is curious that while we have such disastrous and numerous fires in this and neighboring countries and in North America, there are modern cities not far off absolutely fire-proof, as Buenos Ayres and Montevideo. Yet it is so easy to make houses fire-proof with wood that many of the architects and builders of Buenos Ayres and other towns probably never think they are building fire-proof. They neither use iron or the arch. As the province is without trees the builders have to use the hard woods from far up the river, which are dear, and so they use little, this being the whole secret.

A hundred walking sticks may be placed two and a half inches from each other, and yet a fire cannot be made of them if they are spread grid-iron fashion, say across two little walls of brick, and a fire kindled below; it will burn through say four of the sticks, but there it ends. In the same way if a wagon load of shavings and pieces of pine were provided and a half were packed under the best bed in a Buenos Ayres house and the other half piled over it and set on fire, the bonfire would eventually burn through four or five of the hard wood joists above and the bricks and tiles of the floor resting on the same would fall through, but there it would end—the house could not be set on fire.

The houses are built as follows, the material being brick: Each floor and the roof (which is flat) are supported by joists of hard wood about the same distance apart as in this country; across these are laid flat rails of the same, and the spaces between these are bridged over by thin bricks thirteen and a half inches long, their ends resting on the rails; another layer of brick is then laid with lime, and generally on this a layer of flat tiles. The roof is exactly the same, but has a slope of about one in thirty. Then the doors and windows have no boxes, but simply frames, which are set up on building the walls and built in. There is no lathing or wainscot, nor skirting of the bottom of the walls. And all the wood is of the hard and hardish kinds, slow to ignite. Thus the houses are, as already said, absolutely fire-proof,

SOME SLANG.

"Pow-wow" comes from the Indians.

To "nigg at whist" means to renig; that is Saxon for deny.

The word boss comes from the low Dutch and means master.

Kidnap comes from the napping or stealing of a kid, gypsy for child.

Calaboose, a prison; picaroon, a pirate; palaver, to talk, are all Spanish.

"A rum chap" is simply a gypsy lad; it has no relation to the product of the still.

"Dude," meaning a dandy, has no appreciable derivation. Like Topsy, it growed.

Pal is a brother, and "conk," for nose, comes from the spouting fountain, the concha of the Romans.

Demijohn comes from the Arabic damaghan, itself taken from the Persian glass-making town of Demaghan.

The common slang word "mash" is from a beautiful gypsy word "mafad," which means "to charm by the eyes."

The good dictionary word "vamp" was at first a slang word, being rubbing up of old hats and shoes. Now, from being a cobbler's word, it has become a classic, and we talk of revamping the language.

A tinker's dam has nothing to do with swearing. It is merely the dam or stoppage, made of flour and water, with which the tinker stops the gap he is mending until the tin or the pewter he is using has cooled.

Meeting of Editors.

The editors of Pennsylvania had a meeting in Harrisburg on Wednesday of this week. T. M. Jones, of the Harrisburg Telegraph, was elected president; R. H. Thomas, Mechanicsburg, Secretary and Treasurer, and J. B. Fisher, of Waynesboro, corresponding secretary. The selection of an objective point for next summer's jaunt of the association was left to the Executive Committee, with the understanding that a seashore resort be chosen. KNOW THYSELF.

The full capacity of the lungs is about 320 cubic inches.

The human skeleton consists of more than 200 distinct bones.

Each perspiratory duct is one-fourth of an inch in length; of the whole about nine miles.

About two-thirds of a pint of air is inhaled and exhaled at each breath in ordinary respiration.

The weight of the heart is from eight to twelve ounces. It beats 100,000 times in twenty-four hours.

The skin contains more than 2,000,000 openings, which are the outlets of an equal number of sweat glands.

The stomach daily produces nine pounds of gastric juice for digestion of food; its capacity is about five pints.

An amount of blood equal to the whole quantity in the body passes through the heart once every minute.

A man breathes eighteen times a minute and 3,000 cubic feet, or about 365 hogsheads of air every hour of his existence.

The average man takes five and one-half pounds of food and drink each day, which amounts to one ton of solid and liquid nourishment annually.

Facial Expression.

Herald of Health.

A man's occupation or condition has a good deal to do with making his facial expression. Intellectual pursuits, like studies of the scholarly profession, when, coupled with temperate and moral habits of life, brighten the face and give a person a superior look. Magnanimity of nature, or love of studies and arts, will make a bright, glad face; but contrary to this, a man may have a face that does not please anybody, because of a love of self to the exclusion of all others, notwithstanding his learning and worldly-shrewdness. Soldiers get a hard, severe look, overworked laborers constantly look tired, reporters look inquisitive, mathematicians look studious, judges become grave, even when off the bench; the man who has had domestic troubles looks all broken up. An example of the ludicrous side of this subject is to see a third-class lawyer stalking around a police court looking wise as an owl. The business makes the face, I say. There's the butcher's face, the saloon keeper's face, the ministerial face, the lawyer's face, the doctor's face, the hoodlum's face, all so distinct each from the other and singly, that I seldom fail to recoghize those callings showing through the faces

HE WAS GONE.—At least they would have been alone if it had not been for each other,

The father's footstep sounded on the stair.

They knew whose footstep it was, because one of his legs was gutta-percha and habitually walked out of time with the other.

"Had I not better be going?" he asked anxiously.

"Why? Simply because pa is coming? —Why, you don't know pa. He says he thinks you are the nicest young man that ever came to the house."

"Indeed!" gasped the astonished youth.

"Yes, and he thinks you are bound to rise in the world, and that he would not for an instant be afraid to trust my happiness to your keeping at any time when you see fit——"

Adolphus' chair was empty.

He had just turned the corner two blocks away.

REVIEWING THE SERMON.—Mrs. Smith —"How did you like Dr. Pulpit's sermon last Sunday?"

Mrs. Brown—I thought it was just grand. Didn't you?"

"Yes. The way he pitched into people who talk about their neighbors did my heart and soul good. Did you notice how that contemptible cross-eyed thing Mrs. Bejones colored up? And no wonder, for I'm sure—don't you breathe a word of it though—that she is not one bit better than he ought to be. Why her husband goes away and leaves her for weeks at a time. She says he's a traveling man. I'd like to know where he gets the money to travel on,"

"And look at the way she dresses!"

"Oh, it's awful! She ought to be put out of the church."

"That's just what I think."

Colonel Kaintuck—"Yes, sah; bl-o-od sah! I'll kill him on sight!"

Philadelphian—"Murder is punished by hanging in this section."

"I'll glory in any death in such a case, sah. Bl-o-o-d! Bl-o-o-d, I say! I'll—"

"But during the months of imprisonment previous to the hanging you will be allowed neither whiskey nor tobacco."

"Eh? I'll go around and apologize."

Mrs. Mimosa—"Now Johnnie, go kiss your little sweetheart and make up."

Johnnie—"No'm, I won't."

"Go tell her how much you love her and how sorry you are."

"Guess not! Pa says he got into a breach of promise case by telling a girl that, and had to marry the old thing. I ain't running risks, I ain't.

—A VIRGINIA politician, who had been refused a life insurance policy on the ground that he had been bitten by a Spitz dog wrote to the eminent scientist, Pasteur, on the subject. The Parisian doctor replied that a healthy dog's bite is harmless, but advised that the animal be watched for eight days after inflicting the wound, to make sure that it is not mad. M. Pasteur evidently thinks that a dog which has such a depraved taste that it will bite a Virginia politician can scarcely be in a healthy physical and mental condition.

EDISON, the electric wizard, is apprehensive that when easy and safe aerial navigation becomes an accomplished fact, as he predicts it will, the commissions of crime will increase in consequence of the comparatively safe escape afforded by sailing out of the lines of telegraphic communication. When those days come town revenue cutters will be flying among the clouds to overhaul every suspicious craft and examine its papers. Air roving will necessarily be placed under strict navigation laws, and new offices will be created in wholesale quantities. Aspirants for office who fail to catch on under the coming Administration can lay back for high positions when air ships come into general use.

MR. RANDALL, although he doubtlessly greatly enjoyed the defeat of the Mills-Carlisle wing of the party, which Mr. Cowles of North Carolina brought about when he secured the adoption of his motion referring a bill containing the Internal revenue portion of the original Mills bill to the Appropriation committee, of which Randall is chairman, instead of the Ways and Means committee" to which it properly belonged, is now in a great quandary about what to do with the bill. If reported to the House it may pass, and that would be a rebuke to the administration and the party leaders, and as Mr. Randall expects to lead his party in the next House he does not want to set a precedent that might cause him trouble in the future.

NOW A writer to the Gazette and Bulletin, at Williamsport, as strenuously advocates the legislative bill to prohibit the importation of western cattle as "Beef Eater," a few days ago, condemned it. He says: "Pass this bill and the consumer will not be imposed upon by strangers; he will be asured of getting sound, healthy beef; will encourage the industry in our own country and in the vicinity of our own city, and I am sure the competition will regulate the price at less figures. In three years there would be such a competition as to reduce prices even lower than western beef could be shipped for. Therefore, encourage home industry. It will bring us a finer grade of cattle, having been fed upon grain of our own producing, making it more tender, juicy and palatable, every way better and more desirable."

SENATORS MORRILL and Standford, the republican members of the sub-committee of the Committee on public buildings and grounds, which is engaged in investigating the office of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury, have already exposed a condition of affairs that should put somebody in prison. It has been a common practice in this office for employes to make contracts, through outside dummies, to perform work which should have been done in the office. Although receiving salaries from the Government, the seamen were allowed to contract for doing work, and what is worse than all, to fix the price to be paid for the same. The investigation is not yet over; and it is said that considerable crookedness is expected to be shown up in connection with the selection of sites in various cities for public buildings. The democratic administration will get out none too soon.

SENATOR BLAIR seems to possess factors that whenever brought to bear upon fire-eating Senators from the South always result in provoking those gentlemen into a state little short of madness. For instance when Senator Morgan, of Alabama, said that if it was in his power to expel every negro from that state and keep them out he would do so, Mr. Blair, by asking him if he thought it would be best for the interests of the white people in the South that the negroes should emigrate in a body, threw the Alabamian into the passion which caused him to engage in some rather bitter personalities toward the Newhampshire Senator. The question asked was certainly a harmless one and if asked by any other Senator we don't believe would have angered Mr. Morgan as it did. Why it is that the hot-blooded Southerners are always ready to quarrel with Senator Blair has long been a puzzle to me. He is essentially a man of peace, and yet he says that if he received a challenge to fight a duel he should feel it his duty to do so.

THE POLL TAX AMENDMENT.

The last Legislature passed two joint resolutions proposing amendments to the Constitution. The first relates to the prohibition of the liquor traffic, and the second to changes in the qualifications for suffrage. The existing qualifications for suffrage: Citizenship of the United States are at least one year preceding the election; residence in the election district at least two months preceding the election; and if 22 years of age or upwards, the payment of a State or county tax within two years.

The proposed amendment makes no changes in the first and second qualifications. The third qualification requires a residence of only thirty days (instead of two months) in the election district. The fourth qualification does away with the payment of a poll tax and permits "every male citizen of the age of 21 years, who shall have been a citizen for thirty days and an inhabitant of this State one year next preceding an election, except at municipal elections, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote," to vote at such election.

There is a proviso that persons in the military service of the State or United States shall not be deprived of the right to vote by reason of their absence, and the Legislature is required to provide the manner in which such absent citizens may vote.

Should this proposed amendment be approved by the present Legislature, it will be submitted with the prohibitory amendment and voted upon at the same time. There is nothing of a partisan nature in either of them, and they can be voted up or down on their merits. There has been a good deal of complaint about the poll tax as a qualification for voting—not so much because the payment of a tax is required, but for the reason that political committees make it their business to hunt up impecunious voters and try to influence their votes as a recompense for squaring their accounts with the tax collector. There is something to be said on the other side, however, or this provision would not have been retained when the Constitution was being revised in 1873. As to the other change, the Constitution of 1828 required a residence in the district of only ten days, which was extended to sixty by the last Constitutional convention, and it is now proposed to make it thirty.

—Ex-Senator Warner Miller, of New York, made the principal address on Monday evening at the thirty-fourth anniversary of the Philadelphia Y. M. C. A. There are eight separate sets of rooms kept open in Philadelphia under the auspices of the Association.

"Of course, no young lady should go out at night without a chaperone," said a Harlam belle to her Chicago visitor. "That's so," replied the Wabash avenue damsel, "but every girl hasn't got a chap of her own, you know."

—Clara Drummell, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Drummell, of this place, died yesterday morning and will be buried at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

—Clinton county people appear prominently in the pension list this week. Daniel Paul Rote has received a new pension and John Croak, of Lock Haven, an increase.

Pleasant to the taste, surprisingly quick in effect and economical in price—no wonder that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the leading preparation of its kind.

"Oh! woman, in thy hour of ease, uncertain, coy and hard to please." With children hurt, long hours she's spent. Do try Salvation Oil, the liniment.

GOVERNOR

E C Burleigh, of Maine, some time ago was troubled with boils on his neck. He took three bottles Brown's Sarsaparilla and was completely cured Mr. Burleigh speaks in the highest terms of this medicine. It will eradicate from out the system all forms of blood poison or blood disease, cure salt rheum, scrofula, cancer or canker, and leave the interior of the system pure and clean, and the exterior glowing with health. Nothing will so thoroughly beautify the complexion, by cleaning the skin, as Brown's Sarsaparilla, which is unlike any other.

The business man who is closely confined; who works long hours; who is restless at night; who bolts his food; whose energies day in and day out are bent in one direction, finds the system thrown out of order, while a train of ills file in upon him. His food sours upon his stomach; he has dyspepsia; he becomes constipated; his headaches, and he finds he can't do business with the vim of the old n time. Just cleanse the walls of the stomach, sweep the kidneys, revive the liver and tone up the blood with a bottle of

BROWN'S Sarsaparilla.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism for 10 years standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all disease of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at W. C. Keplinger & Co's. Drugstore.

—We find the following in an exchange paper, but it just suits as well here in Bellefonte as elsewhere: "A man in Lancaster county is serving a 72 hours sentence in jail for using profanity. Should all persons in this vicinity who indulge in profanity receive a like sentence, we would need a more extensive jail accommodation."

Sick headache is readily cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which tones and regulates the digestion, and creates an appetite.

A Model Newspaper

THE NEW YORK

MAIL AND EXPRESS

The Advocate of the Best Interests of the Home—The Enemy of the Saloon. The Friend of American Labor. The Favorite Newspaper of People of Refined Tastes Everywhere.

The New York MAIL AND EXPRESS, the favorite American newspaper of many people of intelligent and cultivated tastes, has recently made some noteworthy improvements, materially increasing its general excellence. It is in the broadest sense most carefully edited, and adapted to the wants and tastes of intelligent readers throughout the entire country—North, South, East and West. It is a thoroughly clean paper, free from the corrupting, sensational and demoralizing trash, miscalled news, which defiles the pages of too many city papers.

A National Newspaper,

OUR POLITICS.

We believe the Republican party to be the true instrument of the POLITICAL PROGRESS of the American people; and holding that the honest enforcement of its principles is the best guarantee of the national welfare, we shall support them with all our might; but we shall always treat opposing parties with consideration and fair play.

AGAINST THE SALOON.

The MAIL AND EXPRESS is the recognized National organ of the great Anti-Saloon Republican movement. It believes that the liquor traffic as it exists to-day in the United States is the enemy of society, a fruitful source of corruption in politics, the ally of anarchy, a school of crime, and, with its avowed purpose of seeking to corruptly control elections and legislation, is a menace to the public welfare and deserves the condemnation of all good men.

Eureka Coffee.

This well known beveage is an infusion of the roasted albumen of the coffee tree bill (Coffoea Arabica), a native of Abysinia and Arabia, but now naturalized in many of the tropical countries colonized by Europeans.

There are a number of species of coffee, but this one only is known to possess valuable properties. The seed of Coffee Mauritiana prepared in the same way are bitter and slightly emetic. The genus belongs to the natural order Cinchonaceoe, It has a tubular 4-5-cleft corrola and a succulent fruit containing two cells, lined with a cartilaginous membrane, and each containing one seed. In a wild state the coffee tree is a slender tree fifteen to twenty-five feet high, with few branches. In cultivation it is seldom allowed to become more than from 6 to 10 feet high, and is made to assume a sort of the form of a pyramid with horizontal branches almost from the ground. The leaves are evergreen, very shining, oblong, and leathery. The flowers are small, clustered in the axils of the leaves, snow white; the whole appearance of the tree is very pleasing, and the smell of the flower is delicious. The fruit when ripe, is of a dark scarlet color, and the seeds are semi-eliptic and of a horny hardness, The seeds are commonly termed coffee beans, not however because they resemble in any respect the common bean, but from the Arabic word bunn. They are sometimes, but very incorrectly, designated coffee berries, The coffee succeeds only in countries where the average temperature ranges from 64 to 70 degrees F. In Peru and Quito it is acclimatized at an elevation of 6000 feet, where however, frost never occurs; but as it delights in a moist atmosphere, it nowhere thrives better than in tropical islands. Where the climate is dry abundant irrigation is necessary, but the supply of water is cut off as the fruit begins to ripen, in order to the improvement of its quality. The tree yields its first crop in the third year; the crop from a full grown tree may amount to a quart of coffee beans. As the coffee tree continues flowering for eight months its fruits are at any time of very uneven ripeness; in the West Indies, Brazil, and other places of same climatic conditions, there are three gatherings yearly. As equal care is not bestowed upon the preparation of it in all places, where it is cultivated, there are great differences in quality and price. The earlier history of the coffee tree is not very clear. It was not known to the Greeks or Romans; but in Abysinia and Ethiopia it has been from time immemorial; and in Arabia it was certainly in use in the 15th century, and over the rest of the East in the 16th century. Toward the end of the 16th century it was carried from Mocha to Batavia by a Dutchman, where it was soon extensively planted; and at last young plants were sent to the gardens of Amsterdam from which the Paris garden obtained a tree, A slip was sent from this last to Martinique in 1720, where it succeeded so well that in a few years all the West Indies could be supplied with young trees; then from those to Mexico, Central America, and the islands of the Pacific. The following sorts are particularly distinguished from each other in commerce: Mocha which comes from Arabia, Java or East Indian, Jamaca, Surinam, Bourbon, Golden, Rio, from Brazil, etc.,

The employment of coffee as a beverage was introduced from Arabia into Egypt and Constantinople in the 16th century.

In Arabia and the East, coffee is not prepared as a beverage in the same way as in Europe. A decoction of the unroasted seeds is there generally drank, and for Sultans coffee the pericarp with the dried pulp roasted is employed. The great demand for coffee has led to the employment of a number of cheaper substitutes, among which chicory root is the best known in this country. Others of Dandelion root, Carrot, and the seed of yellow Iris, may be mentioned they are prepared by roasting like coffee; but all these substitutes lack the true, constitutents of true coffeee, caffeine and are therefore very different from it in their qualities.

In Sumatra the leaves of the coffee tree are used in place of the seeds. They are prepared by quick drying much as tea is cured, and in this state contains even a larger proportion of caffeine than the coffee seed itself. The use of this leaf may yet extend very much. We have however not received as yet a consignment of this leaf at the Eureka Grocery but we have the coffee bean of all kinds and degrees of excellence. We have a ground coffee (?) at 18 cents a pound. We do not claim that this is a pure article you cannot get a pure article at such a price now unless it would be of very poor quality or damaged in some way, but this is adulterated with some article as described above. We have also Arbuckles both red and black letter. The Edina, Bunola, Alaroma, roasted by a new patent process by "the Union Coffee Co. limited."

Willett's Favorite Coffee roasted and put up by Willett & Quimby. These are common grades. Of higher grades we have the best Java in the market, Mocha the very best, Old Mexican, Nicaragua all fine goods. A combination of some of these coffees make the finest flavored coffee in the world. In everything else as in coffee we aim to keep the very best goods in the market. We keep different qualities of course, but we sell all our goods for just what they are. If you want the best you can get it at the Eureka at as low a price as the same quality can be furnished by anyone and all goods guaranteed to be just as represented. EDITOR DAILY NEWS,

BELLEFONTE, Pa.

I am a young man of something more than sixteen summers and have been thinking considerably of making Bellefonte my home, having heard very much commendable of your town. I have always been very forcibly impressed that I was cut out for the purpose of moving in society, and learning of the sociability of the people of Bellefonte I immediately determined to take up my abode there. I am not in favor however of censuring young people when they keep late hours or pass some remarks which are not altogether in keeping with the rules governing correct language. Because of these objections I am on the eve of leaving this beautiful little village.

I have been in your town on several occasions and found the people very pleasant and your young maidens inclined to be very talkative, a characteristic of the harmless sex which I most admire. During my stay in your town of some few days, through the kindness of some of your young people, I received a very cordial invitation to attend an evening gathering which, in view of the impression I have always nurtured, I gladly accepted. During the time of our frivolity and pleasure, unguardedly, I made use of the expression "Book of Distructions" to which one of your local papers very injudiciously made reference. In attempting to correct the error I only gave it more prominence by calling the book to which I made allusion "Book of Restructions" while it should have been "Book of Instructions." If your people are so severe as to censure a young man for this little inadvertency under such trying circumstances I can assure you that you will be minus the pleasure of looking into my most cheerful face and taking me by the hand and calling me "Good Friend."

I saw in your paper a few days since a letter, anonymously signed, touching upon the evening walks of a young man said to be of dark complexion. I intended going to Bellefonte for the purpose of seeking solid enjoyment. If your roads or highways are for the convenience of the public, who shall assume to be so impertinent as to condemn a young man for calling upon the "object of his affections" even if his little feet make a little noise as he is homeward bound. I am not ashamed to confess it that were I in his place; were my little feet in his little shoes and were I fortunate enough to be in the "whisker business," either moustache or side, I would call the more frequently upon her who is the subject of my happiest thoughts without fear of legal steps being taken as threatened. If this is the course pursued by the older heads of your town, please advise me and it will not necessitate many minutes to pick up my bed and bid adieu to Bellefonte forever. Yoor strooly,

TOMMY HOPKINS.

[We will gladly welcome the young gentleman to Bellefonte and hope his advent will not be prevented or even delayed by the mysterious proceedings to which he alludes. The whiskered gentleman is only a nuisance which can easily be suppressed. So come on, Tommy, and subscribe for the DAILY NEWS.—ED.]

They Were Pleased With Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Stewart, who have been in Nebraska since last June, are at home again They are quite enthusiastic in regard to Nebraska as a place of residence, not only because of its delightful climate, but because of its business opportunities. The fall season in Nebraska has been charming and when Mr. and Mrs. Stewart left there winter had not yet commenced. They say, however, that it begins after the holidays, lasts six or eight weeks and during that time is intensely severe, after which an early spring bursts forth in all its glory. During the autumn the weather has been so mild that vegetation grows freely. The people there make every preparation for the cold period. Their houses, on the north side, are protected with double glass and double doors, and their clothing is warm. While they do not suffer from the cold because of the dry atmosphere, yet they know it is dangerous unless guarded against by every precaution. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart may return to Nebraska during the spring and summer unless his business contracts should detain Mr. S. here. Mrs. S. prefers Nebraska to California.

Hurt in a Foot Ball Game.

About a week ago Isaac Miller, Jr., who is attending school at West Chester, met with an accident while engaged in a game of foot ball. The young gentleman is a son of Mr. Isaac Miller, who lives near this place. We understand that a fellow-student fell on him while in the struggle, injuring him quite severely. It was not supposed at first that his injuries were at all dangerous, but the latest reports are to the effect that his lungs are effected and that his condition is such as to cause grave apprehension. Isaac is a bright, promising young man and we hope his youth and strength may overcome the apparently serious effects of the accident.

—We have often in the past been impelled by unusual excellence of the Pittsburg Dispatch to express our approval of it in these columns. We wish it were more genuinely Republican in politics than it is because then its ability would make it a recognized power in the ranks of the only true American party. But its aim seems to be to give all the news and to this it subordinates every other object, and it most brilliantly succeeds, in many ways eclipsing all its contemporaries. In several special features it promises, during this year, to be better than ever. It will contain novels of absorbing interest and real genius. Hon. Amos Cummings, who has no superior as a correspondent, will contribute regular letters from Washington City. The market reports are unexcelled and are of incalculable value to the business man and farmer. We are glad that its circulation constantly grows.

The average American kitchen and Laxador both known dyspepsia, the one creates it, the other destroys it. Laxador costs only 25 cents.

The "baby's best friend" is Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup since it maintains the baby's health by keeping it free from colic, diarrhœa, etc. Price 25 cents.

—Annie Laurie.—Variations for piano, by Arthur M. Straub. This, the most beautiful of all Scotch melodies, is entwined with the choicest bits of embellishments and taking variations. It is the best work of its kind published in years. Price, 40 cents. Threads of Gold. —Words and music by L. B. Mitchell. A song of sterling merit in every way, and is in itself a musical "thread of gold." Price, 30 cents. If you want either or both of these beautiful pieces, send the amount of price to the Publishers, S. W. Straub & Co., 243 State St., Chicago, Ills., and receive the music by return mail.

A Prosperous Business Changes Hands.

On Saturday Miss Alpha Corman who has conducted the novelty store on Spring street for several years with great success, disposed of it to some one whose name we have not at hand at present. The sale, however, has actually been made, and the purchaser will take possession soon.

It is Miss Corman's intention to go to California. If she likes it there she will remain and her mother will join her. If she should not find California equal to what it is represented to be, and beneficial to her health, she will return.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady of this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. Kings New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs Luther Lutz." Thus write W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. —Get a free trial bottle at W. C. Keplinger & Co's. Drug Store.

In a Bad Fix.

The Philipsburg Daily Journal says that there is a young girl in that city who is in a very queer fix—she is completely and equally mashed on two young men. Her affection is in the direction of the one who is with her. The other evening both of them met her at the same time; one of the young fellows took this girl and the other took her chum. Soon the other fellow came and then the difficulty arose, for she didn't known which she wanted. She told the one she didn't want the other and vice versa. Poor girl.

—Robert Barnett, a young man whose home was at Lockport, across the river from Lock Haven, was killed on Saturday morning while working at the walls of the burned Normal School building. He was on a ladder, 25 feet above the ground, when something fell and struck him on the head. This caused him to fall from the ladder. A quantity of brick fell on him. The injuries caused by the accident produced death almost immediately. He was only 23 years old and the son of a widow.

A Happy Woman.

"The happiest woman like the happiest nations have no history," says the wonderful writer, George Eliot, but no woman can be happy who is suffering from the irregularities and "weaknesses" so common to the sex. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will sooth the nervous troubles and restore health and vigor once more. The roses will bloom again on those faded cheeks. It is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of prolapsus, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, "bearing down" sensations, chronic congestion, inflamation and ulceration, inflamation, pain and tenderness, and kindred ailments.

—The music in the Episcopal church perhaps never sounded better than it did on Sunday morning. The vested choir of men and boys have improved wonderfully and the difficult Te Deum was rendered on Sunday morning in fine voice, perfect time and with impressive effect. The worshippers could not but be edified by it. The responses to the Commandments were also beautifully sung.

Equally Divided.

In the Lycoming county jail in Williamsport, there are just eighteen prisoners, and according to the Gazette & Bulletin, they are equally divided, "eight Republicans and eight Democrats." But that would make only sixteen, so that one of the remaining prisoners must be a Prohibitionist and one a Greenbacker.

ITEMS STRUNG TOGETHER.

WHEREIN THE VARIED SCENES OF EVERY DAY LIFE ARE ACCURATELY DESCRIBED.

Mr. B. O. Deininger, of Millheim, died on Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock. He had suffered for two years or longer with a very serious disease. He was about 50 years of age, a gentleman of much intelligence, extensively engaged in business and highly respected. He was the owner and editor of the Millheim Journal, which during many years was edited by his son-in-law, Mr. R. A. Bumiller. He was twice married and his second wife survives him, she being the daughter of Mrs. Wolf of that place. Being a public spirited man and a useful citizen, his death is a public loss. The Lutheran church, of which he was a member, will miss him. He also took some interest in agricultural affairs and we have heard him speak at the meetings of the county agricultural society.

When there is no fire at all in Bellefonte there is great alarm. This morning at 7.15 o'clock there was a real fire on Logan street and not a note of alarm was heard through the town. People living on Bishop street knew nothing of it. The house is the last one on the south side of East Logan street. It is a small frame structure and was occupied by Mrs. Ostrander and family, who came here some time ago from Snow Shoe. It caught from an overheated stove pipe. It rendered the house uninhabitable and burned part of Mrs. Ostrander's furniture. The fire was extinguished before the Undine fire company arrived and we believe the other companies did not turn out.

There was a very enjoyable masque ball on Tuesday evening at the home of the Misses Curry on Logan street. About fifty young people were present and the event was exceedingly pleasant. One gentlemen who was masked to represent a female character is spoken of as the most grotesquely noticeable person present.

Mrs. Gephart, of Millheim, the stepmother of our excellent fellow townsman, J. P. Gephart, Esq., is very ill. The lady is 86 years of age and is not expected to survive very long. We are sorry to hear of her serious illness.

Hon. B. F. Hunter, of Fillmore, is again reported to be in a more serious condition. Hosts of friends anxiously await to receive more encouraging news regarding him.

Elections in Bellefonte.

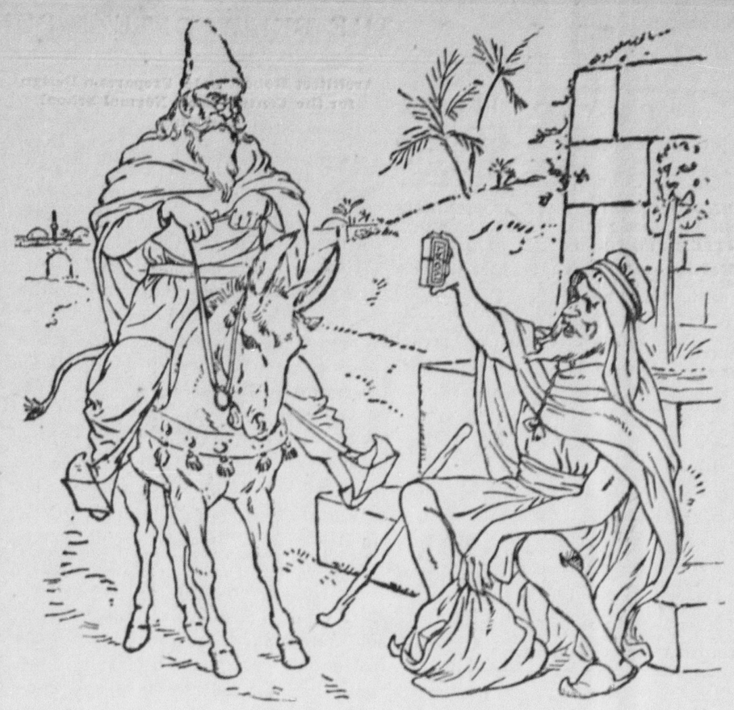
The elections in our town this year promise to surpass in importance all previous events of the sort. Some people consider the election of a President of vast interest, but in Bellefonte the choice of councilmen attracts even greater attention. Under the circumstances, no one seems to long for the position, and it is usually said that a wise man will not have anything to do with it. It is almost certain that no one now in council will stand for a re-election. There is certainly no money in the position and a microscope examination has failed to reveal any honor attached to it. We think that the people at large might at least have the goodness to offer a word of praise to the gentlemen who are willing to attend to the public business for them.

Then on the same day that we vote for councilmen and other borough officers the great cow question will be decided. On its decision hangs the happiness of many people. Whoever walks along Howard, Lamb or Curtin streets must have the full reality and importance of the cow question open to them. How the ladies would like to vote! They are the greatest sufferers under the present arrangement, and it is a wonder how a red-headed cow can look a white girl in the face or vice versa.

Later still, on June 8, there will be another election—on the great question of Prohibition. What effect the warm days of June will have on the question we know not, but the Legislature believes that the best time. We hope the calmness and beauty of the weather at that time (of course, we trust there will be no thunder storm) will help every man to walk up to the polls and do his whole duty. On this question, too, the ladies would like to vote.

This reminds the reporter that he will hardly have finished reporting one election until the next takes place, for it won't be long after the Prohibition question is settled that the interesting fall elections are due. So it goes, and the frequency with which the American can stand up and declare his opinions and show that one man has as much as any other to say on a question is a subject of very great pride.

—The 55th annual report of the Pennsylvania Institute for the instruction of the blind is before us. It shows the expenses of last year to have been $52,198.50. The Institute has $67,245.55 in investments and a cash balance on hand of $14,105.13 to commence the new year with. Last year Centre county furnished three students in the persons of Miss Myrtle Butler and Messrs. John F. Clark and Walter Thompson. Pupils unable to pay for board and tuition are supported by the states from which they come. Applications for the admission of pupils or information concerning the same should be made to Frank Battle, Principle, corner 20th and Race streets, Philadelphia, Pa.



THE STUDIOUS MAN.

Out through the gates of Ispahan
One morning rode a studious man.
"Ah, whither bound?" a traveler cried,
Who rested by a fountain side.
"I go to seek," replied the sage,
"The greatest wonder of the age."
"Then from your saddle now descend
And call your journey at an end,
For here within this sack I hold
The greatest wonder bought or sold."
And stooping down, the speaker drew
A cake of IVORY SOAP in view.
"No alkali this soap contains,
It leaves the lace and takes the stains;
It comes from oils, sweet as the rose
That in the palace garden grows;
It floats like cork upon the wave;
With this we may both wash and shave—"
"Enough, enough!" the student cried;
"You've saved me from a longer ride,"
And turning round his wisdom showed,
For back to Ispahan he rode.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

A Magnificent Bank Structure.

Work on the new First National Bank building will be completed this week. The interior far surpasses that of any other bank building in Bellefonte. The counters are exceptionally elegant, and are finished in old oak. Their surface is as hard as iron and as glossy as the finest marble. The part extending above the desk is richly ornamented with costliest plate glass, above which is an ornate and elegant bronze moulding. A small apartment in the bank, near Allegheny street, is designed as the cashier's private room and is beautifully finished. The heavy doors are massive and solid conveying an impression of wonderful durability, though so carefully are they hung that a child can move them by applying very slight force. The ceiling of the President's room is of delicate blue and is richly inlaid with wood. The woodwork in this room is finished in cypress and the effect is remarkably handsome. In brief, it is a structure which, outside and inside, is worthy the large and prosperous business that will be conducted in it.

—On Saturday the Philadelphia Press printed answers from a dozen or more ministers of that city to the question, "Is the church declining?" As a matter of course, nearly all answered in the negative. But we question the taste of the Press in placing a person like Rev. Madison C. Peters among such eminent divines as Archbishop Ryan, Rev. Dr. Nevin, Rev. Father Field, Bishop Foss, Rev. Dr. Boardman and others whose opinions are of value. It is an insult to the latter gentleman to be classed with such a pulpit clown as Peters.

High Constable.

Leander Green, the well known gentleman of color, begs leave to announce that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination of High Constable, subject to the decision of the nominating convention.

WHO WON THE GAME?

The following is written by request, as a reminder of the Fleming-Eureka game at Milesburg, on September 15, 1888:

"Who won the game?"
"I," said 'Long Mac,
"With my little bat,
I won the game."

Who won the game?
"I," said Bill Brew,
"I pulled the boys through,
So I won the game."

"Who won the game?"
"I," said the "Kid,"
Just look what I did;
'Twas I won the game"

"Who won the game?"
"I," said Proud Curley,
"Though I boast but rarely;
I won the game."

"Who won the gome?"
"I," said gay Danny,
"With my stops uncanny,
I won the game."

"Who won the game?"
"I," said the Deacon,
"For I never weaken,
And I won the game."

"Who won the game?"
"I," said our Flip:
"For I slugged it a clip
And thus won the game."

"Who won the game?"
"I," said big Mack,
"I hit the ball a crack,
I won the game."

"Who won the game?"
"I," said little Cun,
"Look at the bases I've run,
Then I won the game"

Mr. Fleming stood by and saw,
The thing the boys has done,
He snatched his hat from his head,
Shouting "The game is won!"

An English joker took down the calendar in a business office and hung up one two years old. Dates for important papers were taken from it, and a loss of $30,000 was the result.

It is a popular saying that rich men's sons don't amount to much. Of 600 rich men in New York who have sons there are not twenty who are not hard at work building themselves up.

The Usual Exercises with some New Features.

At the High School, on Friday afternoon, the participants in the literary exercises acquitted themselves handsomely, the interest being increased by the debate which concluded the programme.

First was a recitation by Myrtle Eberhart of '92, "The Dying Sailor" was her selection. John Bayard, '92, made expressive gestures as he declaimed a selection bearing the novel title, "John Spinner's Shirt." An essay followed. It was by Alice Everhart of '92. She took "The Palm"—for a subject. "Bear Meadows" was the subject on which I. T Curtin, of class '92, discoursed pleasantly in his essay. Fannie Gregg, '92, told about "A Trip to Penn Cave." Next in order came a recitation—"The Wolf at the Door"—by Helen Mills, '92. "A True Friend" is usually regarded as rare, but Harry Gerberich, '92, told of one in his declamation. The exercises were continued by H. G. DeSylvia, 90, in an essay on "James Williams;" a recitation, by Annie Essington, 91, on "The Vulture and the Captive Infant;" the Declamation by Geo. Graham, '91, "Boys Make Men;" "The benefits of an Enemy," essay by Millie Smith, 90; "The Man who Don't Take Papers," declamation by Chas. Garner, '91; "Resignation;" a recitation by May Taylor, '91; and "Dispute Between the Mouth, Eyes and Nose," an essay, by Bessie Dorworth, '89.

The debate was on the subject, "Resolved, that Lafayette rendered a greater service to the American colonies than George Washington."

H. A. Loeb, 90, advocated the affirmative in an excellent, carefully prepared speech. B. A. Musser, '90, contended as earnestly for the negative. Jennie Luckenbach, '89, and Jennie Fauble, 89, made speeches on the subject—the first on the affirmative and the second in the negative. A. J. Cruse, '89, told why he thought Lafayette did most service and Will Kelley, '89, gave convincing reasons proving that the service of the Father of his Country was of much the greater importance .There was a great deal of sarcasm in the address of the last mentioned gentleman. The three judges—C. T. Noll, H. G. DeSylvia and H. U. Tibbens decided that the negative side of the question had carried the day and thus they restored to the immortal Washington the honors which seemed for a moment to be trembling in the balance and liable at any time to perch on the shoulders of the distinguished Frenchman.

D. F. Fortney, Esq., expressed his pleasure in a speech and a question for debate next Friday afternoon was assigned.

Bills in the House.

Among the bills introduced in the House of Representatives on Friday were the following:

Mr. Lafferty, relative to the incorporation of street railway companies. [This bill validates the charters of companies whose charters are cloudy.

Mr. McCullough, to permit the commissioners of the sinking fund to omit certain things from their annual report.

Mr. Bean, requiring tax on foreign insurance companies to be paid into borough treasuries.

Mr. Fow, to prevent the sending, uttering, printing or posting of any threatening notice or card. [This is aimed at the White Caps, and fully covers the ground.]

Mr. Brooks asked that the bill to punish the posting of brutalizing circulars, which had been killed in committee. The gentleman who had drawn the bill wanted to be heard. The bill was recommitted.

Something Peculiar.

An accomplished young lady who lives not far away made a call upon somebody the other day, and she avows she passed a very delightful afternoon. Who the person was that she called on she does not know. All she knows is that she started out to call upon somebody else and by mistake she got into the wrong house where she met with a very cordial reception from a young lady who evidently knew her well. This young lady rushed up to her when she entered the door and told how awfully glad she was to see her, calling her by name. She also entertained her guest so pleasantly and everything appeared to be so agreeable all around that the latter did not have the heart to break the spell by asking who her unknown friend was, and the unknown friend never knew that she was not known by her guest.

En-Route.

We notice that Senator Betts, on Wednesday the 9th, introduced a bill in the State Senate, for the election of assessors throughout the counties of this state for three years. And the next day it was reported in House by Mr. Wherry, of Cumberland. We hope this measure will pass so as to enable the taxpayers to elect in February for three years. If this is done the assessor will make the assessment of 1890 and 1891 passing on the personal property and then in 1892, when the triennial assessment occurs he will be qualified by experience and must have acquired some personal knowledge of the property in his district and can therefore put a correct value on the same. The assistant assessors should be elected in 1891—Clearfield Republican.

SICK HEADACHE,

Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may truthfully be said that their action upon the system is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative influence. Sold by druggists, 25 cents a vial. Manufactured at the Chemical Laboratory of WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

$500 REWARD

is offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Chronic Nasal Catarrh which they cannot cure.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.—Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. Only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood by physicians.

By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of Catarrh, "cold in the head," Coryza, and Catarrhal Headache. Sold by druggists everywhere; 50 cents.

"Untold Agony from Catarrh."

Prof. W. HAUSSER, the famous mesmerist, of Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

"Constantly Hawking and Spitting."

THOMAS J. RUSHING, Esq., 202 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

ELI ROBBINS, Runyan P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

MASON & HAMLIN

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

ORGANS $22 TO $900.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "Mason & Hamlin Piano Stringer," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune and other important advantages.

PIANOS GRAND & UPRIGHT.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians, and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

Architect Robert Cole Prepares a Design for the Central State Normal School Building.

The fact that the Central State Normal School at Lock Haven will soon be rebuilt is well proven by the fact that already plans for rebuilding are in progress. In the designs for the new structure our architect friend, Mr. Robert Cole, comes prominently to the front. That his plan is received with favor and is recognized as excellent is shown by the following from the Daily Democrat of Thursday:

We were shown to-day at the Irvin House a very fine draft of a new Normal school edifice to take the place of the one recently destroyed by fire, on the hill. The design is by Robert Cole, of Bellefonte, an elegant architect and draughtsman, and not only this, but a practical carpenter and builder as well Mr. Cole's edifice consists of a main building 208 feet long, with two dormitories or wings, one on each side of the main building, 240 feet long, and connected with the central structure by handsomely built gangways. The entrance to each building is by stone steps underneath an overhanging archway, the whole presenting a magnificent front, surmounted by a tower or outlook. We consider Mr. Cole's plan a very fine conception and cannot imagine how it could be surpassed. He comes of a family noted as architects and builders, and we trust his design for the new Normal will be attentively considered by the trustees, to whom, with other designs, it will be submitted.

Are we to Have Another War?

Some political prophets aver that we shall. Be that as it may, the battle waged by medical science against disease will never cease until we arrive at that utopian epoch when the human family shall cease to be afflicted with body ailments One of the most potent weapons which the armory of medicine furnishes, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters which is of special utility as a family remedy, as it is adapted to the immediate relief and ultimate cure of those disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels which are of commonest occurance. Indigestion, biliousness and constipation are inseperable companions, and these ailments are completely eradicated by the Bitters. But the remedical scope of this superlatively wholesome and genial medicine takes in also nervous ailments, rheumatism and kidney troubles; its action in these, as in the other complaints, being characterized by unequaled thoroughness.

A Wedding at Huntingdon.

The dispatches announce a wedding in Huntingdon, on Wednesday morning of last week, in which many of our readers are interested, the fair bride, Miss Martha M. Garretson, having visited here at the residence of Mr. John C. Miller. The reference to the wedding is as follows: William H. Caldwell, Superintendent and one of the proprietors of Banning, Bissill & Co's large tannery in this city, was married to Miss Martha M. Garretson, only daughter of Maj. George W. Garretson, this morning, Rev. D. K. Freeman, D. D., officiating. Guests were present from New York, Philadelphia, Bellefonte and other places. The bridal couple departed for New York and from thence they go South.

r—In one way it is an advantage for the trains to stop at the old depot because that makes three separate and distinct stoppages in Bellefonte add gives passengers a great opinion of the dimensions and importance of the place. Just think! When they are expecting to reach Bellefonte the cry of the conductor is "Nail Works." "Oh," we can explain; "this is only a suburb of Bellefonte." The next stop is Bellefonte and afterwards the train usually stops at the new depot, which gives the impression that Bellefonte is so large that it requires a long time for the train to pass through it.

A New Invention of Great Promise.

Probably the most marvelous hydraulic machinery in the world was placed in operation in the Wheatland Rolling Mill, at Sharon, Pa., on Tuesday. It is the invention of Mr. Mattocks, of Pittsburg, and is designed for rolling pipe iron. High slabs of iron weighing hundreds of pounds were pulled from a furnace glowing at white heat, placed on a long iron bed, which moved forward, upwards, downwards and sideways, pushing the mass through rolls and back again, stopping only when it had been reduced to proper size in shape of pipe iron. The whole operation required the attendance of only one or two employes, who controlled the machinery by a few simple levers. The saving in labor is in proportion of sixteen to one.

The machinery is the only sample of the kind in the world, and it is pronounced marvelous by mechanical experts. It will be used in the future at the mill.

The Union Sunday-school Not Vanquished.

A lady residing at Pine Glenn takes exception to the report of Methodism in the Snow Shoe circuit which appeared in the Conference News and also in this paper. She writes:

PINE GLENN, Jan. 14, 1889.

Mr. Editor—From the tenor of your communication last week clipped from the Conference News, the public might infer that the Union Sunday-school system has been vanquished through the bounds of the Snow Shoe circuit. Far from being so, it still exists, popular as ever. If it has been famous (?) for Union Sunday-schools, it bids fair to continue so, as long as the population is too spare for each denomination to have its own—shedding in the future, as in the past, its sweet influence of love and harmony. JUSTICE.

A Very Old Postmaster.

A petition is being circulated in Yorktown, New York, asking the President to retire Postmaster Lewis Purdy and grant him a liberal pension for life. Mr. Purdy is said to be the oldest Postmaster in the United States, both in years and service, having been appointed Postmaster of Shrub Oak by President W. H. Harrison in 1841, grand-father of President-elect Harrison. Mr. Purdy is now 93 years of age and receives and distributes the mail twice a day and has never been absent from his post of duty a single day since he has been in the service. His only assistant is his wife who is 90 years of age. Both Mr and Mrs. Purdy are venerable with age and service and should be retired on liberal pensions.

—That was a first class wedding in Philadelphia on Thursday morning, wasn't it? Miss Louise Bouvier Drexel was married to Edward de Veaux Morrell. The bride is a daughter of F. A. Drexel, deceased, and a niece of Banker A. J. Drexel. She and her two sisters, who are still unmarried, are the richest young ladies in that city, their annual income exceeding $1,000,000. Though so good they are rich and beautiful and certainly models of Christian benevolence, giving hundreds of thousands to the work of the Roman Catholic church, with which they are connected. Mr. Morrell, the groom, is handsome and a gentleman of fine taste. Taken altogether, it was a model match, and the wedding was conducted in a pleasant way, the company being noted for its quality rather than the number present and the style displayed. The fifty servants of the two families were prominent guests. We hope the bride and groom may have a happy life, as they seem to deserve it, and commend the generosity of the bride to others who are able to follow her example.

—The canning of sweet corn like that of tomatoes, was boomed last year beyond all precedent. From the annual statement of the American Grocer it appears that the total pack for 1888 was 3,491,474 cases of two dozen cans each an increase over 1887 of 1,189,050 cases. This increase is chiefly due to the fact that the great corn states, Illinois, Indiana and Iowa, have gone into the business, these three states putting up nearly 1,000,000 cases, or a trifle less than one-third of the supply. Maine, New York, Maryland and Virginia have been the chief sources of supply heretofore. The present supply is too great for the demand, and consumers are thus assured of cheap corn for the remainder of the year.

Mrs. Livermore's Lecture.

The fourth entertainment in the Star course will be given in the Court House on the evening of the 8th of February. The Boston Advertiser says of her lecture in that city: "From rear of stage to corridor, from footlights to topmost gallery, the Boston Theatre was packed with young and old—who came to hear Mrs. Mary A. Livermore. Hundreds were turned away because they could not find seats, for the house was filled five minutes after the doors were opened. Mrs. Livermore was applauded as she rose, and she proceeded at once to the discussion of her subject, holding her vast audience spell bound until she ceased speaking."

Governor Beaver and another citizen of this place, it is reported, have purchased the Sterling mine near Houtzdale for $50,000.

A New Temperance Bill.

Such efforts have been made in Huntingdon county to defeat the law that Senator W. McK. Williamson has prepared and will submit the following as an amendment to section 16 of act of 1887 and to further regulate the sale of liquors by druggists:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted that it shall not be lawful for any druggist or apothecary to sell any vinous, spirituous, malt or brewed liquors to any minor or person of known intemperate habits, with or without the written prescription of any regular registered physician.

SEC. 2. That it shall not be lawful for any person with or without license, to sell and ship vinous, spirituous, malt or brewed liquors to any minor or person of intemperate habits, resident in any other county than that in which said seller resides. And any person violating this section shall be indicted and tried in the county in which said vinous, malt or brewed liquors shall be delivered.

SEC. 3 Any person violating the provisions of this suppliment shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon convicting thereof shall be subject to the same penalties and fines as are prescribed in section 16 of the act to which this is a supplement.

Crushed to Death in a Mine.

Jacob Stone, says the Huntingdon Local News, was instantly killed in Grove Brothers' iron ore mine, near Grafton, Huntingdon county, on Monday morning of this week, about 10.30 o'clock. He is known as an experienced miner. There was a dangerous projection of rock in the roof of the mine in which he was working, and he was cautioned by his assistant workman to prop it as is customary, but he neglected to do so. While working under the rock it suddenly gave way and the unfortunate man was pinned to the ground under a mass of four tons of stone, crushing his back and the ribs on both sides of his body. Death was almost instantaneous. His assistant had just gone a short distance with a car when he heard the crash, and returned to find his comrade crushed to death. Mr. Stone was aged about 50 years, and had been employed as a miner for about thirty years. His employer, Henry Smith, says he was one of the most reliable and industrious men he had in his employ. He leaves a wife and four children. This is the first fatal accident that has ever occurred in the mine.

The Sweet Trust.

The sugar trust was sweet enough and the molasses and honey trusts are too utterly utter, but the sweet girl trust is what now attracts attention in Bellefonte. The young men have organized to secure a monopoly of the sweetest girls and each one vows to entirely monopolize a certain girl for one month and at the expiration of that time to change off until he has thus enjoyed a month's monopoly of each one. There are twelve young men in the "trust", and consequently just the same number of young ladies, though the latter don't understand it. Just how the girls will subscribe to becoming parts and parcel of the plan when they read the statement we cannot say, but any maiden who is just receiving unexpected and special attention can rest assured that the attentive young gentleman belongs to this monopoly and will prepare to be dropped soon, when another will take his place, and she will receive unusually earnest attentions from some one else. The first month has now almost expired.

—A week or so ago Father McKeever, pastor of the Catholic church at Blairsville, received the news of his appointment to a similar office at Latrobe. The announcement was received with regret by everybody in Blairsville, and preparations were made to express the regard in which the Rev. gentleman is held. Saturday night he was escorted to the town hall where six hundred people greeted him. There he was presented with a handsome gold watch and a purse containing a number of $20 gold pieces The evening was spent in an enjoyable manner, with music and recitations. Father McKeever departed for his new mission on Tuesday morning.

—A justice of the peace, in marrying a couple, the other day, used this formula: "Do you and each of you solemnly swear that you are in earnest about this business, and that you will stand by each other as husband and wife through thick and thin, sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish?" Both parties nodding their assent, they were pronounced man and wife.

—Oranges are now brought to Northern markets in a bulk. The cars are piled about three feet deep with oranges Paper is run around the sides of the car and the floor is covered with fine marsh grass. Bunnell, of Tunkhannock, near Scranton, has been forced to suspend, owing to an unprecedented run due to a rumor that an execution for $40,000 had been issued against the bank which Bunnell was unable to meet. The depositors were largely farmers. They became alarmed and withdrew their deposits. The bank, whose deposits did not aggregate over $100,000, paid 30,000 in a single day and then closed its doors. Bunnell says the depositors will not lose anything and that the bank will reopen as soon at it bridges over this temporary difficulty. Bunnell is loyally supported by the business men of Tunkhannock.

The Way to Wash Windows.

There is a right and wrong way to wash windows, and as this operation is usually dreaded, the following method will doubtless be appreciated; as it saves both time and labor. Choose a dull day, or at least a time when the sun is not shining on the window, for when the sun shines on the window it causes it to be dry streaked, no matter how much it is rubbed. Take a painter's brush and dust them inside and out, washing all the wood work inside before touching the glass. The latter must be washed simply in warm water diluted with ammonia—do not use soap. Use a small cloth with a pointed stick to get the dust out of the corners; wipe dry with a soft piece of cotton cloth—do not use linen, as it makes the glass linty when dry. Polish with tissue paper or old newspaper. You will find this can be done in half the time taken where soap is used, and the result will be brighter windows.

Marriage of W. E. Hamer.

On Thursday morning at 6.30 o'clock at the residence of the officiating minister, Rev. George Leidy, Presiding Elder of Altoona District of the Methodist Episcopal church, Mr. William E. Hamer and Miss Blanche Buffington were united in marriage. The wedding was a strictly private one, only Miss Addie, a sister of the bride, and Mrs. Leidy being present.

The newly married couple in company with the bride's sister left at 7.15 for Philadelphia where the honeymoon will be passed and then they will return to their home at Vail Station to take up the realities of married life.

We take the above from the Tyrone Herald Mr. Hamer, the groom, is an occasional contributor to this paper. The Herald further says that his bride is "one of the fairest young ladies of Bald Eagle Valley." Wish them joy.

The Baby in the Bureau.

A contemporary remarks: There lived in a Pennsylvania town a few years ago a woman who managed this baby-in-the bureau question most skillully. To begin with, the baby, as well as the bureau, was her own. Her method was to remove the two upper drawers, and, seating the child in the lower drawer, gently slide it shut and turn the key. The child then sat up of its own accord and with its head in the space vacated by the upper drawers crowed merrily away for hours. Not infrequently the mother t hus left the child to attend to her duties in some other room, or even to go on shopping expeditions requiring an hour or two. Confined in this improvised cradle, the child was not always quiet, but it could neither harm itself nor any of the objects about it, and this the mother knew.

A Rainbow Social.

The young folks in Chicago have tried the rainbow social and say it is a success. Each one of the girls wears a gay colored apron without any hem at the bottom. The apron is numbered. Other corresponding numbers are placed in a box. Each gentleman draws a number from the box and searches for the young lady wearing the apron thus numbered, to whom he must pay attention that evening. His duty is to hem the apron, all of which he must do unaided by his lady friend, even the threading of the needle. The one who hems the apron the most neatly receives a prize. If he neglects to hem the apron he pays a forfeit.

—C. R. Sober, a marksman of this county, whose proficiency with his gun we believe was first heralded in this paper quite a number of years ago, has accepted a challenge to shoot in a match with Dr. Carver, one of the champions of the world. How's this for skill in shooting? Only the other day we heard of an individual who lighted twelve matches in succession merely by shooting at them, with the bullet, so delicately grazing their tops as to ignite without breaking them. That was skill indeed.

—Some one came rushing into our office on Wednesday afternoon after the paper had gone to press and asked if we had the latest weather report in. According to this individual, word had just been received that intensely cold weather would prevail before midnight of that day. As the weather is even milder than it was yesterday, we are glad we did not issue an extra edition to announce the delusive news.

Death of Mrs. W. G. VanScoyoc.

On Wednesday, at 1.30 o'clock p. m. Mrs. Georgiana VanScoyoc, wife of Mr. W. G. VanScoyoc, died at her home at Tibbins' Station, above Axe Mann. Mrs. VanScoyoc was only 17 years, 10 months and 16 days of age. The funeral services occurred on Friday afternoon, friends meeting at the house at 1.30 o'clock and services being held at the Lutheran church at 2. Interment in the graveyard near the church.

Mrs. VanScoyoc had been married less than a year. Most happily had she and her young husband entered upon married life and that death should come so soon is indeed a distressing trial to her husband and all her relatives. She was the daughter of James G. and E. J. Anderson, who live at the same place. She was a bright and accomplished young lady; possessed of a strong and abiding religious faith and her death, though so sad, was a Christian triumph.

Mrs. VanScoyoc was sick only ten days. A little child, which came during her illness, survives and gives promise of living to console the grief stricken father. All the mourning relatives have our sincere sympathy.

Mr. Farrell, in the House, is the author of a similar measure to prohibit company stores.

Rights of Travelers.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania rendered a decision Thursday upholding the right of the traveling public to have baggage put off at any regular stopping place of trains, even though it should be checked to a point beyond. The case was that of James A. Lyon who bought a ticket and had his baggage checked for Pittsburg, but having reason to leave the train at Birmingham, a station and regular stop this side of Pittsburg, endeavored unsuccessfully to induce the baggage agent to put his trunk off at the place. The damage caused him by the agent's refusal was held by the Court to be recoverable from the railroad company, the language of the Court being that "any regulation of the road imparing the right of travelers to stop off and receive their baggage at any regular station or stopping place of the train is necessarily arbitrary, illegal and void."

—It will be remembered that a year or more since George H. Wooden, of Houtzdale, had an arm amputated owing to the appearance of a cancerous growth upon it. Recently the disease again developed upon the stump and last week he went to Philadelphia to consult Dr. Agnew in regard to it. He was informed that a second amputation would be necessary and that the arm would have to be taken out of the shoulder socket. He also added that if the operation was not performed there was danger of the growth extending to the glands of the neck. Desiring a little time to think over the matter Mr. Wooden returned to Tyrone, where he has relatives. The Tyrone Herald is responsible for the statement that since his arrival at that place he has discovered the disease has already reached the neck. The afflicted man has the sympathy of his many friends all over this county.

Runaway Girl.

Mary Henchey, aged 17 years, wearing a green cloth dress, hat or hood, and a coat tied in front with a black ribbon, weight 150 pounds, dark brown eyes, hair dark brown with bangs, left her home in Tyrone a week ago, in company with another girl who is short and heavy set. When last seen they were in the mountains on the way to Coalport. Any information of the whereabouts of Mary Henchey will be gladly received by John Henchey, Tyrone, Pa.

One Hundred Dollars Bounty.

An Act approved July 23, 1888, provides that all soldiers who enlisted as volunteers for three years in the war of the rebellion, before July 22, 1861, and were actually mustered into United States service, and honorably discharged, shall be entitled to a bounty of $100, without regard to date of muster, or length of service, or cause of discharge.

—Phineas Rogers, who is thought to be the leader of a gang of "firebugs" operated around Mechanicsburg, was on Tuesday arrested, charged with the burning of Seidles Spoke Works, Houch and Comstock Agricultural Establishment, and a number of other buildings some months ago causing an aggregate loss of from $75,000 to $100,000. The evidence is said to be conclusive against him. His partner in crime, Jacob Evans, was arrested some time ago. The trials will take place in February.

Pruning Shade Trees.

We notice that some of our people have been pruning their maple shade trees within the last few days. They may be all right in the way of beautifying the trees but it is not favorable to their healthful growth. Such trees, at this season and later, bleed profusely from wounds. During warm days the sap runs freely to the great detriment of the trees. The best time for pruning is late in April or early in May, when the sap has ceased to flow and the leaves begin to push out. At that season there is no loss of sap and the alburnum soon begins to overgrow and protect the wound. It is a great mistake to trim trees at the wrong time.

It is the Altoona Times that vouchsafes the above valuable (or otherwise) information to its readers. It is the wonderful wisdom contained in the concluding sentence which caused us to almost tumble from our chair. "It is a great mistake to trim trees at the wrong time" is it? Well, yes, it is a mistake to do any thing at the wrong time; but prove that this is the wrong time. A Bellefonte gentleman, after pruning his trees the other day, had the pruned places carefully painted. How does that strike your arboricultural wisdom, Mr. Times?

A Great Crow Convention.

Crows to the estimated number of from one to three million have congregated in the eastern part of Douglass county, Illinois, feeding on the fields at night and congregating during the day. About dusk these birds gather in from the surrounding country in myriads, and the noise they make is deafening. Frequently they alight in such numbers on the trees that large limbs are broken under their weight. One day last week a black cloud of these birds was crossing the railroad track, when the smoke from the engine blinded them. They flew against the side of the swiftly-moving cars, and persons who watched the strange sight counted nearly two hundred dead crows.

DEEP SEA WONDERS exist in thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while living at home should at once send their address to Hallett & Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free, full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $20 in a single day at this work. All succeed.

Bellefonte Republican,

EDWARD T. TUTEN, - - Editor

Local Department.

—Oranges are reasonably cheap.

—Better begin cutting ice at once.

—Now you can have a sleigh ride.

—How's the ice? Isn't it suitable for cutting?

—The editor of the Altoona Times has received some White Cap letters.

—Did you notice the large circle around the moon on Saturday night?

—What has become of Mr. Tom Hutchinson? He makes himself rather scarce of late.

—According to the almanac, there will be no eclipse of the honeymoon the coming year.

—Some times the gentlemen from Centre county now in the Legislature, come home to spend Sunday.

—A society ball was held in Tyrone on Tuesday evening. Bellefonte young people being well represented.

—The Bellefonte Glass factory did not change hands after all, but we hope it did receive a new lease of prosperity.

—There was a pleasant Methodist social at the residence of Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., the pastor, on Monday evening.

—In politics the Philadelphia Press is excellent, but the Times of the same city gets way ahead of it in giving society news.

—A South ward citizen was jailed the other day for abusing his wife. Next to White Caps, that is the most suitable punishment.

—In several parts of the State the snow was much greater than in this vicinity. In Renovo, we notice, it is reported as more than a foot deep.

—The editor of the Lock Haven Daily Democrat don't believe in early rising. He believes it is much better to indulge in sweet morning dreams.

—The date for the appearance in this place of the Swedish National Ladies' Concert Company has been fixed for Friday evening, February 15.

—Wednesday was the coldest of the present season in this place. A self-registering thermometer marked 1° above zero as the coldest point reached.

—Jim Crowe, a New York murderer, will probably be the first man executed by electricity under the provisions of the new law regulating executions in that State.

—The prothonotary and his clerk are devoting themselves so earnestly to business that they don't sleep at night now and, as for going home to dinner, they don't tnink of such a thing.

—The Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin is publishing biographical annals of persons well known in the history of the West Branch Valley. On Saturday the subject was Gen. William Haines Blair.

—There is a new novel called "John Ward, Preacher." The scene is laid in Lock Haven and the name of the hero fits the noted base ball player. It is a religious novel, and is widely read and variously commented on.

—Sunday was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the entrance of Mr. William Jones into the First National Bank. Within a week from the present date, it is expected, the bank will occupy its handsome new building.

—There was no meeting of the borough council on Monday evening, because the janitor forgot or neglected to build a fire in the council room. What a slight cause can impede for two weeks the business affairs of a borough which has given governors and judges to the world!

—If the light of the furnaces makes a beautiful spectacle on ordinary nights, the brilliancy is increased wonderfully when the snow is spotless white on the ground. We noticed it several times on Sunday night, throwing over all the broad expanse of territory a lured glow which was enchanting.

—Sunday was a typical winter day, giving the average individual a taste of what he had been so ardently longing for. The cold was intense, the wind whistled in from the East, driving before it the fine snow. Heavy garments felt comfortable for the first time for weeks and all the fur caps and overcoats that could be obtained were called into requistion.

—Still the cry from some parts of the town is that water cannot be obtained. We believe that this is the case on East Linn street where Mr. Kyle McFarlane's house is located. So far as Curtin street is concerned, the supply of water during the past nine months has been excellent—scarcely an hour in any part of the day without abundant quantities of the indispensable element.

—How are the poor, whom ye always have with you? Are they prepared for the cold weather? The elements have been merciful to them this season thus far and the severity of the weather, threatened on Sunday, will be felt all the more sensitively. "Even as ye have done it unto, one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me," said the Divine One. Search out the poor and minister unto them.

A DISCOURSE ON BLIZZARDS.

Samuel W. Baker, of Des Moines, Iowa, Tells How Certain Theories are Exploded.

THE BALD EAGLE CREEK AND THE DES MOINES RIVER ALIKE IN DANGER.

Mr. Editor: The press reports bring to us the terrible details of a cyclone in Pennsylvania with its accompanying loss of life and destruction of property, calling out the sympathy of the West for the people who are thus afflicted. We have noticed that after a reported storm in the West the comments of some of the eastern papers in reference there-to were of a widely different tone from those that are now going the rounds of the press there. "A fellow feeling makes us wondrous kind," and a genuine cyclone of the funnel-twister stripe seems to be no respecter of states, exerting its wonderful power and strength in one half day over almost the entire length of the mountainous and timber-protected surface of Old Pennsylvania, with the same relentless fury that characterized its travel over the broad level timberless prairie of our Iowa.

During the visit of the writer in September last to old Centre, in quite a number of instances when in the course of conversation a residence in Iowa was alluded to, the question was asked, "How can you live in peace and expect such terrible storms?" and such declarations were used as, "I would not live in a country where the houses are liable to to be torn to pieces over my head, or myself and family carried away in a storm while all are asleep." These and many other like references to storms and cyclones could not be very well met then, but I think that the recent disasters at Pittsburg, Williamsport, Sunbury, Harrisburg and Carlisle, ending with the fearful mortality at Reading, answer all references to Iowa storms. If Bald Eagle acquaintances think we are in dread or danger, they are placed in like circumstances, for they are located as near such scenes of destruction of life and property as we are, and there is just as much danger of the valley of the Bald Eagle being laid waste, from Milesburg to Lock Haven, by one swoop of these monsters, as there is of the valley of the Des Moines river near the capital of Iowa. The city of Des Moines never had a visitation of this kind, and we are living in hopes we never shall. A saying has been left with us by the Indians that a cyclone loses its power or rises when nearing the junction of rivers, and on this we have built our hopes, but the mischief done at Pittsburg thoroughly explodes this theory; so now we of Iowa have as much to fear as you of Pennsylvania.

Our greatest scare was when our sister sister city of Grinnell, east of us, was torn up. The writer squandered about two days in making a visit to the ruins and became fully convinced that resistance to such powerful elements would be useless; and the only means of safety is to prepare a hole in the ground and enter if sufficient warning can be had. This storm occurred about dark of the evening of June 12, 1881, mowing a swath about a quarter of a mile wide through the heart of the city, mashing the houses into kindling wood, twisting off 18-inch trees like pipe stems, hurling a freight train of loaded cars from the track, passing out on the open prairie a mile or so and leaving there for parts unknown. If I remember right the killed numbered 23.

The time of the day when it occurred and the noise made by the approach of the storm gave people an opportunity to get to their cellars and caves. The many seemingly incredible sights and freaks witnessed there are indellibly fixed on my mind, for what the eyes behold the heart must believe. I studiously avoided reference there-to during my visit, for the reason that I considered my "reputation for truth and veracity" still of some consequence to me, but I have acquaintances in Reading to whom I could describe the Grinnel horror with a knowledge that every word I spoke would be believed.

The dead and wounded at Pittsburg and Reading outnumber any day's cycloning Iowa ever had, and the destruction of property is greater than any that has occurred in the West for years. The disaster at Reading was peculiarly distressing because it brought death to so many girls shut up in a factory at work, with no possibility of escape. The building does not appear to have been well constructed, and it is possible the inmates would have fared no better if it had, as the force of a cyclone has never yet been computed.

Taking our whole land into consideration, we can but dread and expect them on the broad prairies of Iowa and in the mountainous country of the east in January as well as in May or June, always hoping that each time we may be passed by in safely. It is noticeable, however, that the greatest disasters wrought by the elements in the last five years have been in the East. The great March blizzard in New York, the wind and sleet storms in the northern part of that State, the floods in the eastern streams and now the cyclones in Pennsylvania all call out the sympathy of the West for the people thus afflicted.

A Personally-Conducted Tour to Florida via the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Following up the policy so successfully inaugurated last winter, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company announces that a series of tours will be arranged this season for points in Florida and Georgia. The first is fixed for Monday, January 28th. On that date a special train of Pullman drawing-room sleeping-cars, under the Superintendence of the Tourist Agent and Chaperon will leave New York at 6.30 p. m., Newark 6.59, Elizabeth 7.08, Trenton 8.05, Philadelphia 9.20, Wilmington 10.04, Baltimore 11.40, Washington 12.50 a. m., and run through via the Atlantic Coast Line to Jacksonville and Thomasville, arriving at the former on the morning and the latter early in the afternoon of the second day. The round-trip tickets, which will admit of a two weeks visit in the South, including Pullman accommodations and meals en route in both directions, will be sold from New York at $48.00, Philadelphia $46.00, and at rates in proportion from other principal stations on the system. The rates to both Thomasville and Jacksonville are the same, but the tickets are distinct. This trip will undoubtedly prove a most delightful one, as the return limit of the tickets enables the tourist to visit all the important points in this attractive section.

The excursion rate as above from Bellefonte will be $49.00.

Tourists will take a regular train connecting with the special at the nearest available station.

For detailed information address S. W. F. Draper, Tourist Agent, 840 Broadway, New York.

Gilt-Edged Paper.

Gen. Russell A. Alger, of Michigan, has charge of Mrs. Logan's estate of forty thousand odd dollars. It could not be in better hands, for he is honest and successful in business. He has so invested in that it yields Mrs. Logan a handsome interest, and has so secured it that she simply cannot lose it unless Detroit falls into the river and disappears in Lake Erie. A friend of mine was in Alger's office in Detroit a day or two after Alger received the funds from Mrs. Logan, when a prominent banker came in. "How would you like to discount that?" asked Alger, handing him a note for $40,000, Mrs. Dogan's order, signed Alger & Smith—his firm's name. "Do it in a minute," promptly responded the banker. "I thought you would," said Alger, who could borrow half a million on his own personal note any day in the week but Sunday. "But just to make sure I got a few endorsements on the back so that the payee needn't have any trouble about it. Turn it over." The back was covered with names of Detroit millionairers, beginning with James P. McMillan, Michigan's next Senator. The payment of that $40,000 was secured by from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000.

About Samoa.

The sensational news from Samoa prompts us to say that these islands—also named the Navigator islands—are in the Pacific ocean, longitude 170° west from Greenwich, and latitude 11 south of the Equator. They are 2,300 miles south of the Sandwich islands.

It looks very much as if some one had been guilty of unlawful acts and to protect himself had hoisted the American flag, fancying that the flag would be respected to the extent of protecting him in doing as he pleased. The flag of a nation does not belong to each individual in the nation, and it is only respected when it represents some representative of or authority of the government, such as the army or the navy.

In the present instance the flag was made use of by an ex-consul who may not even be a citizen of the United States, for in most of the remote and unimportant ports the consuls are citizens of the country to which the port belongs.

An Important Matrimonial Query.

Here is something which only the highest science can solve. Who is equal to it? Two couples start out together, each occupying a sleigh. Before going far they overtake another sleigh, probably occupied by another couple. The party behind calls to the companion party ahead to "drive around" the sleigh in front. This is promptly and skillfully done, but in some way, either because they couldn't or didn't desire to, the party behind fail to follow and keep behind the strange sleigh. As a result they part company with the companion sleigh and unwittingly follow the strange one, going several miles out of their way. Now the query is—did the party driving make a mistake or did their horse, left to follow his own free will, follow the sleigh ahead by instinct? Who was driving the rear horse, anyway? and where were the thoughts and hands of the couple?

—Some idea of the economic effect of a mild winter may be derived from the statement that every day of warm weather at this season of the year means 100,000 tons of coal less consumed. This would mean 2,000,000 tons less per month, and it would also mean loss of work and wages to the hundreds of thousands of persons engaged in mining and shipping and handling it between the mouth of the pit from which it is dug and the stoves and heaters in which it is consumed.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. VAN SCOYOC.

A Sweet and Amiable Character, the Bride of Less than a Year, Claimed by Death.

Death comes like the pall of night
It also comes as an angel bright.

In both of these aspect death came to Mrs. W. G. Van Scoyoc, Tibbens Station, near Axe Mann, which was mentioned in the DAILY NEWS on Thursday, her decease occurring on Wednesday, the 16th, at 1.30 o'clock p. m. It could not but cause regret to her who was summoned to leave an affectionate husband a wee babe and many loving friends, though it was the entrance to a bright eternity. It was the cause of sorrow to those who loved her so and who were encouraged by her bright smile, yet they almost wished to go with her to the Beulah land. The bride of less than a year was she, and so youthful—only 17 years, 10 months and 16 days old. Born March 30, 1871, the daughter of James G. and E. J. Anderson, who reside at the same place and who were with her to console her dying hours.

After her birth, in 1872, her parents moved to Logan, in Mifflin county, her father being a minister in what is known as the United Christian church—an organization which has but few followers in this part of the state, but in which her father labored patiently, often without money and without price. He stayed in that locality twelve years, part of the time living in Reedsville, the same county. Afterwards he lived a short time in Huntingdon and at Maitland, Huntingdon county. After living a while at Tyrone he returned to Boiling Springs, where he now resides. In these journeyings of course he made a wide acquaintance. He reared quite a large family. There were five daughters and two sons, all living except two of the daughters, the death of one of them being the subject of this article. She was a loving and amiable girl, being wedded a short time ago to Mr. W. G. Van Scoyoc, who himself is a minister in the United Christian church. Mr. Van Scoyoc has also traveled extensively through the State in pursuit of business and also on religious missions and has made many friends, who will mingle their sympathy with him in his grief. Mr. Van Scoyoc was born in Charlottsville and will be only 23 years old on the 7th of April of this year. Last year he was licensed to preach in the church of his choice. He also labors at other occupations, being compelled to do so in order to gain support. It is the testimony we receive that both husband and wife were esteemed by all who knew them. Their courtesy and kindness were ever the same, their winning ways made them the friends of all, and kind neighbors displayed with interest their sincere attachment to the dying wife when they waited by her bedside and ministered to her dying needs. To one and and all Mr. Van Scoyoc returns grateful thanks.

Rev. G. P. Sarvis was a religious counselor at her bedside. In his usual straightforward way, he inquired as to her religious faith and she replied with an earnest confidence that fully assured that excellent minister of the Word. Rev. Sarvis also officiated at the funeral, speaking tender words of consolation, and the hymn rendered by the choir, 'Asleep in Jesus, Oh how Sweet,' seemed an apt expression of the condition of the one to whom they were paying funeral honors.

Mr. Van Scoyoc is arranging to move move from his present place of residence, having accepted a call to the Hollidaysburg charge of the United Christian Church, in which we wish him much success.

A gentle one has passed away
In going left a song;
A tune of sweetest minstrelsy—
A benediction long.

Within each agonizing heart
There is a shining gem;
A golden cord from out the skies,
A solace sweet to them.

Oh wife, oh mother in the skies,
Oh bright and gleaming star,
Thy death has brought us Heaven near
Which erst while seemed so far.

—Ex-Senator Greer, now an Inspector of the Soldiers' Orphans' School, is looking after its interests, as these schools will end on the 1st of January of next year unless new legislation is secured extending the system. The Legislature is disposed to pass a law in accordance with the action of the committee of the Grand Army of the Republic recommending that the State continue its care of the children of soldiers and sailors until June, 1885, when nearly all the pupils now in the schools will have reached the age of sixteen years. Ex-Senator Greer says an appropriation of $250,000 will be sufficient to keep the schools running until June 1, 1890. By the 1st of June the State will have expended on soldiers' orphans' schools about $9,346,000.

Sad Case.

John Bohowitsky, a Hungarian, was killed at Morrisdale mines on Saturday morning by several tons of coal falling on him. A companion named John Powella was hurt but not seriously. The dead man had a wife and two children in Hungary and had been engaged at Morrisdale only four days.

Personal Pencilings.

Miss Ella McHugh, of Houtzdale, spent Sunday in Bellefonte.

Miss Mary Jones, of Philipsburg, is visiting friends in this place.

Miss Mary Jones, of Philipsburg, is visiting friends, in this place.

Mr. Frank Logan, of Tyrone is spending, a few days in Bellefonte.

Hon. L. A. Mackey has again been elected a vice president of the State Agricultural Society.

The condition of Hon. B. F. Hunter of Fillmore, was considered to be slightly improved on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Montgomery are at home again after spending nearly a month in Philadelphia.

Mr Jacob Heylmun, of Curtin street, on Sunday, entertained his brother, who lives in Lycoming county.

The family of E. R. Chambers, Esq., have gone to Kennett Square, Pa. to spend a few weeks with relatives.

Hon. L. A. Mackey is named as a candidate for Mayor of Lock Haven. Mr. Mackey is certainly Lock Haven's most prominent citizen.

Editor Fred Kurtz has been elevated to the high position of president of the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company of this county.

We were mistaken in recording the arrival home of Mrs. F. C. Montgomery. Mr. M. came home alone and Mrs. M. is still in Philadelphia.

Mr. Thomas Hill, of Philadelphia, spent Sunday with his relatives here. He was on his way home from a business tour in the west.

Congressman-elect Kerr, of this district attended the great Democratic conclave of leaders in Philadelphia, on Tuesday evening of this week.

W. A. Brown, the music teacher at Spring Mills, has opened a music store in that place. Mr. Brown is himself a composer and band leader.

Miss Brooks, one of the lady instructors, of the State Normal School, of Lock Haven, was present at the teachers meeting, in this place on Saturday.

Mrs. Wilson Rowe is visiting friends in Sunbury, and Mr. R. and daughter, Miss Lottie, are experiencing the pleasures and vicissitudes of housekeeping all alone.

Rev. Robert Hamill, DD., has been the Presbyterian pastor at Oak Hall Station for forty-three years. He has been there ever since his entrance to the ministry.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Sechler, of Tipton, Cedar county, Iowa, have been visiting their relatives in the East. They were in Bellefonte awhile, and now are at Flemington.

We notice that Mr. James Milliken is again in Bellefonte after quite an extended absence. He took his usual ramble for recreation over the hills on Sunday, despite the fact that the air was stinging cold.

Mr. J. W. Yeisley, representing the Traveler's Informer, a monthly publication located in Altoona, is attending to the interests of his paper in Bellefonte to-day. The paper is designed especially for the use of the traveling public.

Mr. J. L. Montgomery, the efficient and enterprising manager in Bellefonte for the Acme Oil Company at Williamsport, will have his office headquarters with Messrs. Jenkins and Lingle, at the foundry, where all communications will receive prompt attention.

Mr. Aaron Lehman, of Philipsburg, is at present a guest in the home of his uncle, Mr. Moyer Lyon, on Linn street. It is Mr. Lehman's first visit here for two years. Though young, he is already quite prominent in the business affairs of Philipsburg and it will be quite in order for the girls to fall in love with him. Some of them think he is better looking than Moyer.

—A District Lodge session of the West Branch District, Good Templars, will begin in Philipsburg on Thursday morning and continue through that and the following day, ending in the evening with a lecture by Prof. Irish, of the Lock Haven Normal School. The Bellefonte lodge will be represented. We notice that our friend, C. Dinges, is to read an essay on the subject, "Should Good Templary take an interest in the Campaign if the Prohibition Amendment should be submitted to the people for a vote?" That's a queer question. Just as if every temperance individual in the state should not take an interest, much more a so-called temperance organization. We advise Mr. Dinges to answer simply "yes," as such a question is not susceptible of discussion—it can have but one answer, and time spent on it is time wasted.

—Mr. Krebs, a member of the Legislature, on Monday, introduced a bill to regulate beneficial and protective Associations, providing that no body hereafter incorporated under the act authorizing their incouorrations shall have authority to make contracts of insurance or issue policies of insurance or employ agents to secure membership. The privileges of such organizations are limited to paying funeral expenses, not exceeding the sum of $300, and to pay sick or disability benefits or afford relief to the unfortunate or indigent members.

The fact that all our prominent business men have a tendency to baldness is viewed with alarm by many of our best people. Your correspondent wishing to learn the cause, tried the interview plan. William Lucas, who is as bald as a prize pumpkin at a county fair, says that in his case it was caused by early piety. T. B. Buddinger, his neighbor, says he believes it to be hereditary. His wife's father is very bald, and as his hair is getting quite thin on top of his head, he thinks he inherited it from his father-in-law. Joseph Smith, J. P., says that pegging old strong smelling shoes will make any man bald. Cam Boak says that it is thin atmosphere. Since he lives on the hill he is getting bald much faster than heretofore. John G. Uzzle says it is caused by trouble and there is generally a woman at the bottom of it. In John's case we think her name is Election Bet.

James Reading, the grocer, says that his baldness was caused by getting up before breakfast and working between meals. George W. Lucas, Jesse Lucas, S. Y. Lucas, Robert Lucas and about a dozen more Lucases all say that it is like the small pox—when it gets into a family it don't know where to stop. C. T. Cheeseman our next P. M. who is as bald as the full moon in the dog-days, says that his father and grandfather were both bald, but the direct cause he never found out. "Claude Cook" used to say that in his case it was caused by anxiety in looking for a life partner, but the way he recently fell into the 'Pond' of matrimony shows that he was well repaid for his anxious seeking.

What a Baseball Pitcher Can Do.

The New York Star says Timothy J. Keefe, the great baseball pitcher, has now $20,000 or $25,000; but that is nothing to what A. J. Spalding has done. In 1887 he was a player on a salary of about $3,000 a year, when he concluded to open a store for baseball goods in Chicago. He is now head of a company which controls a large store in New York, besides the original one Chicago. He owns the majority of the stock of the Chicago club, which would probably sell for $100,000, and when he wanted to take two nines to Australia he drew his check for $30,000 without hesitation. He is said to be worth at least a quarter of a million, and is highly respected in Chicago, where he at least belongs to one swell club, although he used to be a professional base ball player.
